

Compare your histograms to the histograms in the illustration below (reprinted from Seeley, 1986), which we have drawn from Seeley's data. As the graphs and photos in the illustration show, the snail population on Appledore Island in the early 1980s was, indeed, dramatically different from the snail population that was there in 1871. The snails had, on average, shells that were thicker than those of their ancestors. The 1980s population also showed a somewhat smaller range of variation in shell thickness. The flat periwinkles living on Appledore in the early 1980s were descendants of the snails that were living there in 1871. Therefore, we can describe the change in the population as descent with modification, or evolution.

How did this descent with modification, this evolution, happen? The mechanism of evolution is the subject of this lab. You will do experiments on a model population to explore how evolution works. Then you will return to Seeley's flat periwinkles to see how the model applies to them.
