Tanzanian Women Their Own Words:

Tanzanian Women in Their Own Words Sheryl Feinstein, Nicole C. D'Errico, 2010-01-01 Tanzanian Women in Their Own Words is a compilation of oral histories by Tanzanian women living with disabilities or chronic illnesses. The narratives encourage readers to consider issues of health care, transportation, ignorance, polygamy, gender discrimination, and rural isolation. Through learning about the health challenges faced by Tanzanian women, students are introduced to the lifeways and concerns of Tanzanian culture, the challenges faced by many developing countries, and the intimate and evocative level of detail that can only be discovered through intensive ethnographic fieldwork. Research Handbook on End of Life Care and Society David Clark, Annemarie Samuels, 2025-09-10 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY 4.0 License. It is free to read, download, and share on Elgaronline.com. This comprehensive Research Handbook provides an accessible overview of research on palliative and end of life care in its social context. It examines key theories, methods, and research findings, presenting crucial social science and public health perspectives. Environmental Health Narratives

Emily Mendenhall, Adam Koon, 2012-08-15 Andrew woke up with a guinea worm coming out of his foot as a result of drinking unsafe water a year previously. Anjali awoke with a cough because smoke from kilns filled her dilapidated home. Tyler stayed home from school because he had a stomachache from eating bad beef. What are the links between the environments in which these young people live and their health problems? The stories, most set in poor communities, draw attention to the effects of air, water, food, climate, urbanization, and other human impacts on health. A comprehensive teaching guide provides a context from which readers can explore problems and solutions in environmental health. The Best of Corwin:

Educational Neuroscience David A. Sousa, 2011-09-21 Featuring the works of recognised pioneers in the nascent field of educational neuroscience, this collection shows how to apply current brain research to teaching and learning. The book is divided into three parts: The Developing Brain, The Brain in School, and Instructional Strategies for Every Brain. From the Brain to the Classroom Sheryl Feinstein, 2014-01-15 Supplying a foundation for understanding the development of the brain and the learning process, this text examines the physical and environmental factors that influence how we acquire and retain information throughout our lives. The book also lays out practical strategies that educators can take directly into the classroom. Comprising more than 100 entries, From the Brain to the Classroom: The Encyclopedia of Learning gathers experts in the fields of education, neuroscience, and psychology to examine how specific areas of the brain work in thought processes and identifies how educators can apply what neuroscience has discovered to refine their teaching and instructional techniques. The wide range of subjects, organized within the main categories of student characteristics, classroom instructional topics, and learning challenges, include at-risk behaviors, cognitive neuroscience, autism, the lifespan of the brain, from prenatal brain development to the aging brain, technology-based learning tools, and addiction. Any reader who is interested in learning about how the brain works and how it relates to everyday life will find this work fascinating while educators will find this book particularly helpful in validating or improving their teaching methods to increase academic achievement The Brain and Strengths Based School Leadership Sheryl G.
