

The diagram illustrates the electrical circuit for a killswitch ignition system. It includes the following components and connections:

- STATOR: The main power source, connected to GRND via a red/black wire.
- CDI (Capacitor Discharge Ignition): Receives energy from the stator via a red/black wire. It has a KILL terminal connected to the kill switch and a TRIGGER terminal connected to the coil via a blue wire.
- COIL: Receives energy from the CDI's trigger terminal. It is also connected to GRND via a green wire.
- KILL SWITCH: A switch that can interrupt the flow of current between the CDI and the coil. When closed, it allows current to flow; when open, it stops the engine.
- FLYWHEEL: Shown as a circular component with six segments, representing the mechanical part of the system.

SPARK PATH

- 1: Stator sends energy via the red/black wire to the CDI to be stored
- 2: Magnet in flywheel causes coil in sensor to send impulse along trigger wire causing CDI to release energy to the coil
- 3: Coil steps up the voltage and sends it to the spark plug causing an arc across the electrode
- 4: The killswitch grounds the coil stopping the spark
- 5: The ignition switch uses the killswitch wire on many units to stop the engine, therefore if the killswitch wire is removed, the bike can be kickstarted and the engine will run because it generates its own spark even with the ignition switch off.

- This is the 6 coil stator common on most 50cc scooter but also can be found on a 150cc too. The wire colors listed are very common but may vary. Stators come in different sizes ranging from the 6 coil mentioned above to the 18 coil versions on most 250cc scooters.
