

DE8310 Delayed Egress Electromagnetic Lock Installation Instructions (Continued)

Delayed Egress System – Overview

The Delayed Egress electromagnetic lock is a fail safe device.

In the normal condition with power, the door is locked, the local buzzer is off, the local SPDT relay is de-energized and the remote alarm DPDT relay is energized.

The exit sequence starts with a slight push to the door. A nuisance delay period can be set for 0, 1, 2 or 3 seconds as defined by the local building code. During this period the local buzzer will pulse and the local alarm relay will be energized. If pressure on the door is withdrawn during this period the system returns to normal conditions. This would be considered accidental triggering.

If pressure is maintained for longer than the set nuisance delay, an irreversible release delay sequence begins. This release delay is for 15 seconds, but may be extended to 30 seconds with permission of the Authority Having Jurisdiction (AHJ). It includes the short nuisance delay. Pressure is no longer required on the door. The remote relay de-energizes. The local buzzer changes from a pulse to steady.

The lock releases when the release delay time ends. The local buzzer remains on until reset and the local alarm relay will de-energize. The system relock is defined by the local building code.

All installations must be approved by the local Authority Having Jurisdiction (AHJ).

Anti-Tamper Feature - Two screws prevent insertion of an Allen wrench into the captive mounting screw opening on the bottom of the lock. Fig. 1 shows their location. One screw also secures the wiring cavity cover. The mounting plate cannot be separated from the lock without removing these two screws.

PUSH UNTIL ALARM SOUNDS
DOOR CAN BE OPENED IN 15 SECONDS

Several building codes including the NFPA 101 Life Safety Code and the International Building Code require the signage (shown left) to be mounted on the door close to the releasing device.
