

Cell Membrane and Transport Coloring

The cell membrane is responsible for moving materials into and out of the cell. There are two types of transport that can occur across the membrane: passive transport and active transport. Passive transport does not require energy and includes the processes of osmosis, diffusion and facilitated diffusion.

The graphic shows the phospholipid bilayer and embedded proteins, the two main components of the cell membrane. Phospholipids are made of hydrophilic (water-loving) heads and hydrophobic (water-hating) tails. The phospholipids are arranged opposite to each other, with the heads pointing toward the cell's environment and the tails aligning to each other. Color all the phospholipids (c) of the membrane red. ☐

Some small molecules, like oxygen, can move right across the phospholipid bilayer through a process called diffusion. Diffusion occurs when molecules move from an area of high concentration to an area of low concentration. Color the oxygen molecules (b) green ☐.

Some molecules are too large to pass through the membrane. Molecules like glucose, which is a sugar molecule, must use special proteins embedded in the membrane to move into the cell. These proteins are called channel proteins, and they provide an opening, like a door, for large molecules to pass. Glucose will also move from areas of high concentration to low concentration, but because it needs the help of a protein, the process is called facilitated diffusion. Color all the glucose molecules (d) purple ☐. Color the channel protein (a) yellow ☐.
