Markets on the Margins Kate Philip, 2018 Examines more than a decade of enterprise development strategies in marginal economic contexts in South Africa's mining communities and shows how this might impact on development strategies In 1987 workers in South Africa's National Union of Mineworkers NUM staged a historic national strike and 40 000 mineworkers lost their jobs To assist them the NUM set up a job creation programme starting with worker co-operatives before shifting to wider enterprise development strategies Against the backdrop of South

Africa's transition from apartheid to democracy this programme provided support in communities hard hit by escalating job losses on the mines including in neighbouring countries In this book Kate Philip who ran NUM's job creation programme for over a decade charts the often difficult lessons learned from grappling with the limits and opportunities that such market participation offer to reduce poverty and improve livelihoods She explores whether and how it might be possible to make markets work better for the poor and what the notion that markets are social constructs might mean for constructing them differently Kate Philip is a Senior Economic Development Advisor in the Government Technical Advisory Centre GTAC of South Africa's National Treasury Through the International Labour Organisation she has also been supporting the government of Greece in the design and development of a public employment programme
