Literary Research and British Postmodernism Bridgit

McCafferty, Arianne Hartsell-Gundy, 2015-09-02 Literary Research and British Postmodernism is a guide for scholars that aims to connect the complex relationships between print and multimedia technological advancements and the influence of critical theory that converge in postwar British literature. This era is unique in that strict boundaries between fiction, nonfiction, multimedia, and print are not useful. Postmodern literature is defined by the breaking down of boundaries as a reaction to modernism and requires an innovative, multifaceted approach to research. In this guide, the authors explore these complex relationships and offer strategies for researching this new period of literature. This book takes a holistic approach to postmodern literature that recognizes the way in which digital media, film, critical theory, popular music, and more traditional print sources are inextricably linked. Through this approach, the authors present a broad view of postmodernism that includes a wide variety of British authors writing in the last half of the twentieth century. The book's definition of postmodern includes any British literature following World War II that engages issues central to postmodern theory, including the social construction of gender, sexuality, and power; the subjectivity of truth; technology as a social force; intertextuality; metafiction; postcolonial narrative; and fantasy. This guide aims to aid researchers of postwar British literature by defining best practices for scholars conducting research in a period so broadly varied in the way it defines literature. Metaphor, Metonymy, and the Poetics of Space and Time in Contemporary Literature

Cristina Mirela Nicolaescu, 2025-11-04 A comprehensive study of how Anglophone fiction reconceptualizes fundamental categories of human experience is presented in this work. It explores how readers navigate the dynamic interplay between temporality and spatiality within narratives and how metaphorical and metonymic processes transform these concepts, thereby bridging the disciplines of cognitive linguistics, cognitive poetics, literary theory, and narratology. The study demonstrates that location and time are never mere backdrops; rather, they are actively constructed through figurative language and narrative structure. This work, combining theoretical rigor with critical interpretation, offers a novel methodological framework for understanding how literary and linguistic figurations integrate temporal and spatial dimensions into narrative structures. It argues that literature occupies a distinctive position in revealing both the convergences and divergences between lived experience and cultural imagination, fostering a poetics that is simultaneously analytically rigorous and deeply human. Scholars and advanced students of literary studies, cognitive poetics, linguistics, and comparative literature, as well as anyone interested in the intersections of language, place, time, and narrative possibilities in modern culture, will find this book essential reading. Norse Mythology Volume 1
