

Understanding Literature through Historical Context

3 pages | 578 words

Requisites of literary criticism involve understanding and delving into a set of concepts and intellectual assumptions based on the underlying structure which constitutes the literary matter and the objective of the critical practice. The text is not merely just text but is a product or conception of the world outside the text.

Even with the proliferation of the Formalist approach---scientific basis through objective analysis of the motifs, devices, techniques, and other "functions"---the traditional approach of criticizing literary texts by tracking influences, establishing the canon of major writers in the literary periods, and clarifying historical context and allusions internal to the literary art remains a prominent form of criticism today.

The intellectual Structuralist and Post-Structuralist approach questions the importance of 'historical/cultural contextualization' in the face of objective criterion for analysis and pronounced importance of the literary form. Here we try to dis/prove the immediate roles of 'historical contextualization' on some popular poetry works spanning from different periods--- The Lady of the Shalott (Medieval Ages), William Blake's The Lamb (Age of Romanticism), Wilfred Owen's Dulce et Decorum (War Period).

Ordinarily, we associate mysticism, chivalry and knighthood with the Medieval Ages. The Lady of the Shalott can only be understood in terms of its' historical implications primarily because the song/tale's immediate objective was to denote the beliefs of the [medieval] locality [of Camelot] on the existence of ethereal beings and the fear [of the locality] and respect/admiration for the abstract beings.

William Blake's The Lamb reflects the dreaminess of the Romantic Era which focuses much on the genteel qualities of life like the 'pastures' and 'the little lamb [endearment terms for the baby]. Wilfred Owen's Dulce et Decorum conditions us with tales of patriotism and war; the intent was unmistakable---depict the ugliness of bloodshed associated with [First World] War, it's inevitability and the justifiable cause in the name of patriotism.

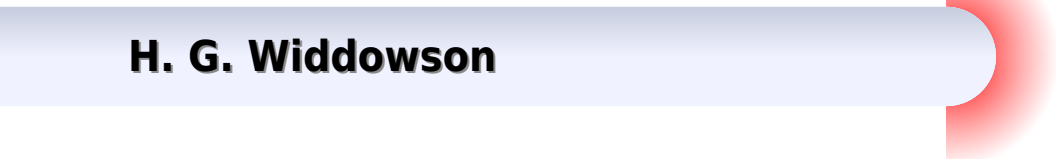

The historical values reflecting each era was clearly visible in terms of literary structure and author's intent; while it is clear that the 'structure' and 'forms' reflect the internal qualities of the literary pieces, it must be maintained that we should acknowledged the necessity of making historical value judgments to feed the author's intent and the cultural implications implicit within the texts.

Through this, we can address the fundamental aspects of literature--- the material conditions of the culture depicted in each text and the underlying subtext; the revelations of economic and social realities that are embedded in different timeframes; and more so, the evolution of ideologies for the different timeframes/period. As previously noted, the different works do not work in a continuum; the literary consumption for Medieval Ages differ markedly from the Romantic and the War Era.

The medieval ages tend to hinge more on knighthood; the Romantic Era on pastoral qualities; and the War Era on bloodshed. We are trying to point out here that literature being a product of social context, then it must be analyzed on the material conditions imposed by the environment at the time of literary rendering and intent of the...

Johannine Community David A. Lamb,2014-04-24 Text Context and the Johannine Community adopts a new approach to the social context of the Johannine writings by drawing on modern sociolinguistic theory Sociolinguistics emphasizes language as a social phenomenon which can be analysed with reference not only to its broad context of culture but also through the use of register analysis to its narrower context of situation The Johannine writings have increasingly been seen as the product of a distinct Johannine Community depicted by some scholars as a sectarian group opposed both to wider Jewish society and to other Christian groups This model has largely been constructed on historical critical grounds yet given our lack of reliable external information about the origin of the Johannine writings a more fruitful approach may be to examine their lexico grammatical and discourse features to determine what these imply about interpersonal relationships This study compares selected narrative asides from the Gospel of John with a passage section from 1 John and with the two shorter Johannine Epistles It concludes that register analysis of these texts does not support the idea of a close knit sectarian group Theory, Text, Context Christopher Lyle Johnstone,1996-10-03 This is a bone crushing confrontation of
