

CHAPTER 1

Anatomy and Physiology of the Skin

Paul A.J. Kolarsick, BS, Maria Ann Kolarsick, MSN, ARNP-C, and Carolyn Goodwin, APRN-BC, FNP

Introduction

The skin is the largest organ of the body, accounting for about 15% of the total adult body weight. It performs many vital functions, including protection against external physical, chemical, and biologic assailants, as well as prevention of excess water loss from the body and a role in thermoregulation. The skin is continuous, with the mucous membranes lining the body's surface (Kanitakis, 2002).

The integumentary system is formed by the skin and its derivative structures (see Figure 1-1). The skin is composed of three layers: the epidermis, the dermis, and subcutaneous tissue (Kanitakis, 2002). The outermost level, the epidermis, consists of a specific constellation of cells known as keratinocytes, which function to synthesize keratin, a long, threadlike protein with a protective role. The middle layer, the dermis, is fundamentally made up of the fibrillar structural protein known as collagen. The dermis lies on the subcutaneous tissue, or panniculus, which contains small lobes of fat cells known as lipocytes. The thickness of these layers varies considerably, depending on the geographic location on the anatomy of the body. The eyelid, for example, has the thinnest layer of the epidermis, measuring less than 0.1 mm, whereas the palms and soles of the feet have the thickest epidermal layer, measuring approximately 1.5 mm. The dermis is thickest on the back, where it is 30–40 times as thick as the overlying epidermis (James, Berger, & Elston, 2006).

Journal of Reconstructives, Dietetics and Alimentation , 1892 The Skin-Ego Didier Anzieu, 2018-05-15 In this classic work the author presents and develops his theory of the importance of the Skin ego Just as the skin is wrapped around the body so the author sees the Skin ego as a psychical wrapping containing defining and consolidating the subject From this perspective the structure and functions of the skin can provide psychoanalysts and general readers with a fertile and practical metaphor The author s concept of the Skin ego is the answer to questions he regards as crucial to contemporary psychoanalysis questions of topography which were left incomplete by Freud the analysis of fantasies of the container as of the contained issues of touch between mothers and babies extending the concept of prohibitions within an Oedipal framework to those derived from a prohibition on touching and questions pertaining to the representation of the body and to its psychoanalytic setting This new translation of Le Moi peau is based on the second and last 1995 edition Skin Claudia Benthien, 2002 She also examines the changing significance of skin through brilliant analyses of art philosophy and anatomical drawings and writings as well as Germanic American and African American literature Benthien discusses the semantic and psychic aspects of touching feeling and intellectual perception the motifs of perforated armored or transparent skin and much more through close readings of such authors as Kleist Buchner Hawthorne Balzac Rilke Kafka Plath Morrison Wideman and Ondaatje
