polymers in the surface structuring for sensing applications The chapters of this book present the usage of robust small sensitive and reliable sensors that take advantage of the growing interest in nano structures Different chemical species are taken as good example of the determination of different chemical substances industrially medically and environmentally A separate chapter in this book will be devoted to molecular recognition using surface templating This book will find a large audience of specialists and scientists or engineers working in the area of sensors and its technological applications It will also be useful for researchers working in the field of electrochemical and biosensors since

Modular and Reconfigurable Wireless E-tattoo Platform for Mobile Physiological Sensing Hyoyoung Jeong, 2019 Moving from traditional healthcare methods of monitoring biometrics to an individualized wearable modality promises to reduce healthcare expenses and to present better values to the end user Over the past few years ultrathin and ultrasoft epidermal electronics aka e tattoos have emerged as the next generation wearables Considering health monitoring's unlimited potential applications in telemedicine performance tracking human machine interface HMI and personalized mobile health it is paramount to develop more affordable dependable and unobstructive biometric monitoring methods compared to current expensive and confining systems However it is impossible to build an all purpose e tattoo that can accommodate such a wide range of applications and e tattoos are only practically useful when they can operate wirelessly Thus I report the design fabrication and validation of modular and reconfigurable wireless e tattoos for personalized physiological sensing Such modular e tattoos are comprised of a multilayer stack of stretchable layers featuring distinct functionalities a a near field communication NFC layer capable of wireless power harvesting and data transmission or battery charging b Bluetooth BT long distance data transmission c functional circuit layers d a passive electrode sensor layer These layers can be disassembled and swapped out multiple times to form custom e tattoos with user specified sensing capabilities To implement such flexible e tattoos I invent a cut solder paste microfabrication method which is rapid prototyped via a dry digital and cost effective freeform manufacture process The mechanical strain and strain dependent characteristics of the stretchable antenna have been analyzed by finite element method FEM I also demonstrate reconfigurability of such modular e tattoos so that they can be disassembled and reassembled multiple times Multimodal e tattoos are stretchable by up to 20% and capable of wirelessly measuring skin hydration skin temperature oxygen saturation level SpO2 heart rate electrocardiogram ECG seismocardiogram SCG and body motion also estimating continuous real time blood pressure BP Moreover I report a novel magnetic field repeater feeding coil on clothes by leveraging embroidery method and wireless capability Utilizing this engineering framework it enables not only more dependable and long term but also continuous and real time ambulatory monitoring of a variety of biometrics I believe that this platform opens the door for accessible and affordable personalized healthcare monitoring in the near future
