THE FLOW OF RESOURCES TOWARDS THE POOREST IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA Narcisse Kpokou, 2025-05-07 African states south of the Sahara must realize how far behind they are in terms of health the industrial plan the technology plan and the financial plan otherwise our States will find themselves in a situation similar to the Great American Depression and even worse Economic growth has increased over the past ten years but very saddened to see that the unemployment rate is still high and inflation still galloping The financial institutions we depend on for preserve our financial security which really turns out to be quite fragile if that If it fails millions of people will be devastated In other words our economy is perched on the edge of a cliff Either we work together to return safely or we must prepare together to return safely or we must prepare for potential disaster This book provides a plan for bring our nation back from the brink It is the legacy of an unprecedented movement in the history of Africa I view this book as a dynamic blueprint that will stimulate discussion and debate the only goal is to create the plan that best serves the people Africans then implement it We want action I reiterate my point actions and not words Everyone who supported me or is willing to participate in this intellectual debate will not agree with everything I write and I understand them because everyone has a monopoly on their intellect but know that I am only one voice who represents the voiceless I hope that those who agree with me on the symptoms of our country s illness even if they challenge some of my resolutions that I highlight that they use this as a means of judging the candidates for national office in their countries You are the owners of these countries No one else can do the work for you Our system had been corrupted since the first days of independence by what we exercised our responsibilities of owners This is the year to reaffirm your ownership A voice would be tiny and alone it cannot be heard beyond the political din as usual The voice of the people when they cry with one voice is a great roar united we are standing it is magic it cannot be ignored so much that it can change our country and you transmit our African dreams to our children

Ethics, Efficiency, and the Market Allen E. Buchanan, 1985 This clear and incisive book provides the ideal critical synthesis of the best thinking on one of the most important moral social and political issues of our time the role of the market as a basic institution of social organization It articulates the two main types of arguments for and against the market efficiency arguments and ethical arguments and examines their conceptual empirical and moral presuppositions as well as their implications for capitalist socialist and market socialist economic arrangements Among the many striking features of the argument is Buchanan's contention that the allegedly purely technical notions of efficiency current in the social science literature rest on unexamined ethical assumptions and that the ethical arguments offered by philosophers and political theorists depend upon unexamined assumptions about efficiency Buchanan also contends that the problem of relativism for judgments comparing social systems is no less serious for efficiency claims than for ethical claims This short accessible book will raise the quality of the debate in both philosophy and the social sciences It is an ideal introduction to its subject for students in political and social theory economics comparative politics and philosophy
