History as a Science and the System of the Sciences Thomas M. Seeböhm,2015-04-09 This volume goes beyond presently available phenomenological analyses based on the structures and constitution of the lifeworld It shows how the science of history is the mediator between the human and the natural sciences It demonstrates that the distinction between interpretation and explanation does not imply a strict separation of the natural and the human sciences Finally it shows that the natural sciences and technology are inseparable but that technology is one sidedly founded in pre

scientific encounters with reality in the lifeworld In positivism the natural sciences are sciences because they offer causal explanations testable in experiments and the humanities are human sciences only if they use methods of the natural sciences For epistemologists following Dilthey the human sciences presuppose interpretation and the human and natural sciences must be separated There is phenomenology interested in psychology and the social sciences that distinguish the natural and the human sciences but little can be found about the historical human sciences This volume fills the gap by presenting analyses of the material foundations of the understanding of expressions of other persons and of primordial recollections and expectations founding explicit expectations and predictions in the lifeworld Next it shows on the basis of history as applying philological methods in interpretations of sources the role of a universal spatio temporal framework for reconstructions and causal explanations of what has really happened The Social Developmental Construction of Violence and Intergroup Conflict Jorge Vala, Sven Waldzus, Maria Manuela Calheiros, 2016-08-18 This book describes how the violent dimension of intergroup relations can be better understood if the interplay between psychological and social developmental factors is taken into account Ten unique innovative and original chapters by international scholars of social and developmental psychology address the way how social reality is constructed as a hierarchical order and how social norms beliefs and cognitive behavioral patterns are learned shared and repeatedly processed on how to uphold or challenge this social order The volume covers diverse issues such as the effects or lack thereof of power and violent video games on people s thinking and behavior the acquisition of social norms and attitudes during childhood minorities identity management strategies the role of mothers educational beliefs and the impact of ideologies This volume is inspired by the oeuvre of Maria Benedicta Monteiro emphasizing the psychogenetic and sociogenic diacronies that are too often neglected by the predominantly synchronic paradigm of social psychology It is therefore an indispensable reading for researchers and advanced students in social community and developmental psychology for scientifically interested practitioners working with families school contexts or intergroup conflict and for everyone interested in the expanding field of the social developmental approaches to attitudes and behaviour Register University of California, Berkeley, 1919
