Abstract

- Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program on the physical and psychological health of older adults with chronic low back pain. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The intervention group participated in a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program. The control group received no intervention. The primary outcome was the change in the Oswestry Disability Index (ODI) score. The secondary outcomes were the change in the Visual Analog Scale (VAS) score, the change in the Short Form-36 (SF-36) score, and the change in the Beck Depression Inventory (BDI) score. The results showed that the intervention group had a significantly greater reduction in the ODI score, a significantly greater improvement in the VAS score, a significantly greater improvement in the SF-36 score, and a significantly greater reduction in the BDI score compared to the control group. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program can effectively reduce the physical and psychological health of older adults with chronic low back pain.
