The Luggage of Life. A Fireside Philosophy. [With a Portrait.] Frank Boreham, 1912 The Luggage of Life Frank Boreham, 2015-06-16 Excerpt from The Luggage of Life These leaves are of Australian growth It is both unnecessary and impossible to disguise it The breath of the bush is on them There were however so many who found them good either for food or for medicine in these Britains of the South that it was suggested that the plant might survive the ordeal of transplantation to a northern clime England is a land of noble hospitalities And after all men are built pretty much the same way all the world over A thing that is true under these soft southern skies is no less true where northern constellations burn A word that wakens thought beneath the shadow of the wattle may lead a man to rub his eyes under a spreading English oak A message that brings back the smile of courage to the bronzed face of a disheartened squatter may relieve a bruised spirit

Unpackin'-The Baggage of Life Dan Brannan, 2014 I went from being a healthy soon to retire airline pilot to a man with cancer who lost his job of more than twenty five years and his retirement savings Initially I fell into a prolonged and deep depression One warm spring afternoon while sitting on the porch I made the decision to end it all to take my own life reasoning that my life insurance policy had greater value for my wife and three children than did a man with cancer no job and no money It was then while immersed in these suicidal thoughts that I fell into some sort of sleep more like a trance than sleep during which time I had what I can only describe as a surreal experience It was strange but so very real like I was in another world another place or another time Since that afternoon on the porch I have engaged in a journey of reflection and have realized that the baggage we begin to accumulate in our earliest years ultimately affects every relationship that we have none more so than the one we have with ourselves We have only two choices we can buckle beneath our load or we can unpack it and become greater than we ever imagined ourselves to be
