If Any Man Sin (Classic Reprint) H. A. Cody, 2017-09-17 Excerpt from If Any Man Sin The church was warm brightly lighted and well filled with men and women NO one heeded the stranger as he slipped quietly into a back seat and looked around The trained voices of the white robed choir thrilled his soul Every word of the hymn was familiar to him for he had Often sung it in days gone by The congregation too was singing and ere long he distinguished one voice from the rest He had not heard it at first but now it fell upon his ears with a startling intensity It was a woman's voice sweet clear and full of mingled tenderness and pathos The man's firm white hands clutched hard the back of the seat in front of him and his face underwent a marvellous transformation His eyes shone with eagerness and his bosom lifted and fell from the vehemence of his emotion He leaned forward until he could see the singer and watched her intently Then when the hymn was finished and ere the congregation dispersed the stranger having cast one more longing look upon the woman with the sweet voice slipped noiselessly out of the building About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
