

COLLEGE STORY

The road was packed with vehicles. It was a rainy day. I was looking through the window with hunger, excitement, and fear of the transition from high school to college. I wondered whether all the stories that I have read in books about high school would be real; the stories that movies portray would be real. Our car was slowly moving into the college, heading the admission counter and the engine stopped. I was afraid about the new phase while I still felt joyous to experience what my college life would have for me.

It was another day. The road was busy again. It was a normal sunny day. I was looking through the window with tears filled in my eyes. I felt emotional, sad and fearful that the three years of that college life flew away like a swift bird. I had more stories on my own life. I had new stories that were not from movies or books. Our car was parked; the engine was ignited. We moved out of the college slowly. Tears dropped down my cheeks as we crossed the exit gate. It felt heavy, happy, grateful, and guilty.

College life is a phase with mixed emotions.]
