The Unification of the Arts Steven Brown, 2021-11-25 What are the arts What functions do the arts serve in human life There has been a surge of cognitive biological and evolutionary interest in the arts in recent years most of it oriented towards individual artforms However there has been virtually no bridging work to integrate the arts under a single theoretical perspective This book presents the first integrated cognitive account of the arts that unites visual art theatre literature dance and music into a single framework with supporting discussions about creativity and aesthetics Its comparative approach identifies both what is unique to each artform and what they share shedding light on how the arts can combine with one another to form syntheses such as choreographing dance movements to music or setting lyrics to music to create a song While studies in the psychology of the arts tend to focus on perceptual processes and aesthetic responses alone this book offers a holistic sensorimotor account that examines the full gamut of processes from creation to perception This allows for a broad discussion of the evolution of the arts including the origins of rhythm the co evolution of music and language the evolution of drawing and cultural evolution of the arts Finally the book unifies a number of topics that have not previously been fully related to one another including theatre and literature music and language creativity and aesthetics dancing and acting and visual art and music A unique volume providing a bold new approach to the integration of the arts for academics or general readers of the arts psychology cognitive neuroscience anthropology and evolutionary studies
