How do our Bodies Move?

The way our bodies move is called the study of anatomy and physiology. The study of anatomy is the study of the structure of the body, and the study of physiology is the study of the function of the body.

Our bodies have a framework called the skeleton, which is made of bones. The bones are connected by joints, which allow us to move. The muscles are attached to the bones, and they contract to move the bones. The nervous system controls the muscles, and the brain sends signals to the muscles to move.

For example, when you want to pick up a book, your brain sends a signal to your muscles to contract. The muscles then pull on the bones, and you are able to pick up the book.

Understanding how our bodies move helps us to understand how to stay healthy and how to prevent injury. It also helps us to understand how to treat people who have problems with their bodies.
