

Writing a Literature Review

A literature review...

- Provides an overview and a critical evaluation of a body of literature relating to a research topic or a research problem.
- Analyzes a body of literature in order to classify it by themes or categories, rather than simply discussing individual works one after another.
- Presents the research and ideas of the field rather than each individual work or author by itself.

A literature review often forms part of a larger research project, such as within a thesis (or major research paper), or it may be an independent written work, such as a synthesis paper.

Purpose of a literature review

A literature review situates your topic in relation to previous research and illuminates a spot for your research. It accomplishes several goals:

- provides background for your topic using previous research.
- shows you are familiar with previous, relevant research.
- evaluates the depth and breadth of the research in regards to your topic.
- determines remaining questions or aspects of your topic in need of research.

Relationship between a literature review and a research project

Academic research at the graduate level is always part of a dialogue among researchers. As a graduate student, you must therefore indicate that you know where your topic is positioned within your field of study.

Therefore, a literature review is a key part of most research projects at the graduate level. There is often a reciprocal relationship between a literature review and the research project for which it is written:

- A research project is often undertaken in response to a literature review. Doing the literature review for a topic often reveals areas requiring further research. In this way, writing the literature review helps to formulate the research question.
- A literature review helps to establish the validity of a research project by revealing gaps in the existing literature on a topic that offer opportunities for new research.

Importance of the research question

Once identified, the research question will drive the research project. Whatever you read or write should have a clear connection to your question.

Hogue, 2023-09-28 Presents a new translation analysis and history of the Decalogue based on a comparison to ancient Levantine monuments The Promises of God Kevin P. Conway, 2014-10-29 This study is the first to investigate why Paul makes exclusive use of epangelia for the divine pledge when referring to the Abrahamic covenant a usage of the term never found in the OT LXX After examining Jewish writings and Greek literature of the classical and Hellenistic periods this study demonstrates that Paul is rather unique in his exclusive use of the epangelia word group for the divine pledge and for using the term predominantly in reference to the Abrahamic promises This exclusive usage is further deemed unexpected in that the horkos and omnymi lexemes are by far the terms most commonly associated with God's promises to Abraham in the OT the literature with which Paul was most familiar The study then moves to explain why Paul has chosen this path of discontinuity where it is argued that Paul's exclusive choice of epangelia for the divine promise is driven by its conceptual and linguistic correspondence with the euangelion one of the terms Paul adopted from the early church that forms the core of his ministry This conceptual word study of the divine promise will benefit Pauline scholars interested in Paul's use of the OT as well as his association of the euangelion and epangelia word groups Academy: a Weekly Review of Literature, Learning, Science and Art, 1913 The Poetical gazette the official organ of the Poetry society and a review of poetical affairs nos 4 7 issued as supplements to the Academy v 79 Oct 15 Nov 5 Dec 3 and 31 1910 The Politics and Aesthetics of Refusal Caroline Hamilton, Michelle Kelly, Elaine Minor, 2009-03-26 The Politics and Aesthetics of Refusal is an eclectic collection of essays from emerging academics who engage with the notion of refusal both as the embodiment of a resistance to conventional boundaries between academic disciplines and as a concept with an underlying negative or reactive force that can be widely interpreted and applied The applications of refusal outlined in this volume ranging from activism and the politics of cultural production through to problems of identity and knowledge classification raise questions about often elided relationships of agency and complicity in routine experience The sense of refusal that emerges from this book is perhaps most easily classified by what it is not namely a prescriptive conclusive or unified account of what it is to reject react or work against any particular instance of theory or practice in any given domain The value of a thematically oriented collection like this is its ability to work across disciplines media and philosophical frameworks rather than limiting its focus to a narrow territory According to Herbert Marcuse refusal must not only be the guiding principle for all artistic creation it must also be a manifestation of artistic creation itself With this volume we have attempted to compose a collection which is not only theoretically guided by refusal but practically informed by it as well The collection in itself constitutes we hope a constructive rejection of the usual constrictions of discipline and approach placed upon new scholars This rich collection of essays on the political aesthetic and ethical dimensions of that form of social action called refusal is an important contribution to our understanding of the tensions and contradictions of contemporary culture John Frow Professor
