Anna Katharine Green 1846-1935 was an American poet and novelist. Green has been called the mother of the detective novel. Green is credited with shaping detective fiction into its classic form and developing the series detective. Her main character was detective Ebenezer Gryce of the New York Metropolitan Police Force, but in three novels he is assisted by the nosy society spinster Amelia Butterworth, the prototype for Miss Marple, Miss Silver, and other creations. She also invented the girl detective in the character of Violet Strange, a debutante with a secret life as a sleuth. Indeed, as journalist Kathy Hickman writes, Green stamped the mystery genre with the distinctive features that would influence writers from Agatha Christie and Conan Doyle to contemporary authors of suspenseful whodunits. She was one of the first writers of detective fiction in America and distinguished herself by writing well-plotted, legally accurate stories. In addition to creating elderly spinster and young female sleuths, Green's innovative plot devices included dead bodies in libraries, newspaper clippings as clues, the coroner's inquest, and expert witnesses.

Master Timothy's Book-case George William MacArthur Reynolds, 1844 The Novel and the Sea Margaret Cohen, 2021-06-08

For a century the history of the novel has been written in terms of nations and territories: the English novel, the French novel, the American novel. But what if novels were viewed in terms of the seas that unite these different lands? Examining works across two centuries, The Novel and the Sea recounts the novel's rise told from the perspective of the ship's deck and the allure of the oceans in the modern cultural imagination. Margaret Cohen moors the novel to overseas exploration and work at sea, framing its emergence as a transatlantic history steeped in the adventures and risks of the maritime frontier. Cohen explores how Robinson Crusoe competed with the best-selling nautical literature of the time by dramatizing remarkable conditions from the wonders of unknown lands to storms, shipwrecks, and pirates. She considers James Fenimore Cooper's refashioning of the adventure novel in postcolonial America and a change in literary poetics toward new frontiers and to the maritime labor and technology of the nineteenth century Cohen shows how Jules Verne reworked adventures at sea into science fiction how Melville Hugo and Conrad navigated the foggy waters of language and thought and how detective and spy fiction built on sea fiction's problem solving devices She also discusses the transformation of the ocean from a theater of skilled work to an environment of pristine nature and the sublime A significant literary history The Novel and the Sea challenges readers to rethink their land locked assumptions about the novel

Nineteenth-Century Fiction and the Production of Bloomsbury

Matthew Ingleby,2018-11-05 This study explores the role of fiction in the social production of the West Central district of London in the nineteenth century It tells a new history of the novel from a local geographical perspective tracing developments in the form as it engaged with Bloomsbury in the period it emerged as the city's dominant literary zone A neighbourhood that was subject simultaneously to socio economic decline and cultural ascent fiction set in Bloomsbury is shown to have reconceived the area's marginality as potential autonomy Drawing on sociological theory this book critically historicizes Bloomsbury's trajectory to show that its association with the intellectual fraction known as the Bloomsbury Group at the beginning of the twentieth century was symptomatic rather than exceptional From the 1820s onwards writers positioned themselves socially within the metropolitan geography they projected through their fiction As Bloomsbury became increasingly identified with the cultural capital of writers rather than the economic capital of established wealth writers subtly affiliated themselves with the area and the figure of the writer and Bloomsbury became symbolically conflated
