Questions in the Psychology of Religion Kevin S. Seybold, 2017-03-16 What does it mean to be human? What is the origin of religious beliefs? Why are we moral creatures? Are religious experiences different from our everyday experiences? Is my brain involved in my experiencing God? What is a soul and do I have one? Is religion a result of evolutionary processes? How might psychology and religion relate? Religious experiences, behaviors, thoughts and emotions are determined at least in part by natural physical processes. As a result, the empirical methods used in psychology to try to identify the natural mechanisms that influence why we act, think and feel the way we do can provide important insights into the fundamental and universal phenomena of religion. Drawing on current research from a variety of disciplines, Questions in the Psychology of Religion is appropriate for college students studying psychology, pastors as they help their congregations understand how religion and science might go together, and anyone who learns about recent discoveries in psychological science and wonders how these findings pertain to religion and religious experiences.

Religious Experience and Divinization in the Sectarian Dead Sea Scrolls Rebecca L. Harris, 2025-11-20 For members of the Sectarian Dead Sea Scrolls movement, participation in the group would have granted an individual special privileges including present, unmediated access to otherworldly realities. This understanding of the present as a type of liminal space is rooted in the group's constructions of time and space. Drawing on theories of liminality and anthropological research on religious consciousness, this study seeks to demonstrate how Sectarian identity and ritual and liturgical practice might have cultivated an experience of present communion with divine beings that was also aspirational and aimed to achieve the human worshiper's permanent incorporation into the heavenly realm.

Science and the Confucian Religion of Kang Youwei (1858-1927) Zhaoyuan WAN, 2021-11-15 WAN Zhaoyuan analyses how Chinese intellectuals conceived of the relationship between science and religion through in-depth examination of the writings of Kang Youwei, a prominent political reformer and radical Confucian thinker often referred to by his disciples as the Martin Luther of Confucianism. Confronted with the rise of scientism and challenged by the Conflict Thesis during his life among adversarial Chinese New Culture intellectuals, Kang maintains a holistic yet evolving conception of a compatible and complementary relationship between scientific knowledge and true religion, exemplified by his Confucian religion, kongjiao. This close analysis of Kang's ideas contributes to a richer understanding of the history of science and religion in China and in a more global context.
