Hebrew Law

A quill pen with a dark, pointed nib is shown resting on a scroll of parchment. The scroll is covered in handwritten Hebrew text, which is slightly out of focus. The quill is positioned diagonally, with its handle extending towards the upper right corner of the frame. The background is a warm, golden-brown color, suggesting the texture of the parchment or a soft light source.

Why does God speak to human beings Is it to impart information Is it to unveil the secret of His Being Is it to pronounce judgment When we probe deeply into these questions the author contends we find that God does not speak to mortals simply to satisfy their curiosity or sense of guilt He speaks to his people in order to establish with them a personal covenantal relationship God reassures them He claims them for Himself He gives Himself to humankind He holds on to them as a Father to an unruly child The covenant as a theological category opens up the whole aspect of human destiny and puts mortals and creation in a new perspective This doctrine is so fundamental to theological reasoning the author argues that we may describe it as the axiom of biblical faith From this axiom he goes on to define such other biblical themes and doctrines as the relation between evil and sin the plan meaning and time of salvation the fall the cross and the sacraments the covenant as creation and as revelation history as a moral testing ground Christ as the End of time and the new age
