Hydropower in the New Millennium B. Honningsvag,G.H. Midttomme,K. Repp,K. Vaskinn,T. Westernen,2020-12-18 The power sector has undergone a liberalization process both in industrialized and developing countries involving market regimes as well as ownership structure These processes have called for new and innovative concepts affecting both the operation of existing hydropower plants and transmission facilities as well as the development and implementation of new projects At the same time a sharper focus is being placed on environmental considerations In this context it is important to emphasize the obvious benefits of hydropower as a clean renewable and sustainable energy source It is however also relevant to focus on the impact on the local environment during the planning and operation of hydropower plants New knowledge and methods have been developed that make it possible to mitigate the local undesirable effects of such projects Development and operation of modern power systems require sophisticated technology Continuous research and development in this field is therefore crucial to maintaining hydropower as a competitive and environmentally well accepted form of power generation

The International Journal of Applied Engineering Education ,1988 Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1994 Nuclear Science Abstracts ,1974 Technical Abstract Bulletin ,1979 OECD Principles on Water Governance Aziza Akhmouch,Delphine Clavreul,Sarah Hendry,Sharon Megdal,James Nickum,Francisco Nunes-Correia,Andrew Ross,2020-04-30 The science policy interface is critical to the design and implementation of water policies In theory scientists provide policy makers with robust facts and data that can help guide decision making and lessons from the political economy of reforms can push scientific boundaries further to trigger further research for wise solutions While evidence based policy is obviously desirable in practice such a connection is not always straightforward Another assumption behind the science policy gap is the discrepancy between scientists and policy makers in terms of culture process timing language and expected outcome This book tries to reconcile this discrepancy through a multi stakeholder approach to authoring its different articles This joint initiative between the OECD particularly its Water Governance Initiative and the International Water Resources Association seeks to provide a canvas for grounding water policy in science and vice versa The objective of this book devoted to the OECD Principles on Water Governance is to use the OECD Principles as a common thread across the articles to draw lessons from theoretical work and practical experiences in water governance reforms but also to only feature papers authored by groups of diverse stakeholders from different institutional backgrounds This book was originally published as a special issue of Water International
