I'm happy—what more money
I can leave my soul from the house of my
(In a windy night when the moon is bright
And the eye can wander through worlds of light—
When I can not and my family—
For we'll not see the constant day—
But only you'll wondering with
Through safety, security.

A Student's Guide to Wuthering Heights by Emily Brontë Richard E. Mezo, 2002 A Student's Guide to Wuthering Heights by Emily Bronte is a general introduction to one of the great English novels of the nineteenth century Misunderstood by most critics and commentators upon its publication in 1847 the story of Catherine and Heathcliff and their peers and descendants slowly became recognized as the work of a genius and is now on nearly every list of recommended books for both high school and college students However many students today find the novel difficult to read and understand because of its language and its setting especially challenging to some are the sections in which characters speak in the Yorkshire dialect This guide provides an easy to use glossary of that dialect and translations of the dialogue It also includes discussions of the social economic and political background of the period the last part of the eighteenth and the first part of the nineteenth centuries Combined with a thorough coverage of language and background this guide offers a list of questions about the reading that are intended to lead the students to independent thinking about the work Unlike some better known guides this text contains no detailed summary of parts of the novel Students must read chapters of the novel itself in order to answer the questions In a few instances readers must go outside Wuthering Heights to answer a question that is some basic research is required In addition the appendices contain materials intended to enrich the novel and to deepen the appreciation of each student for this outstanding work It is the desire of the author to make Wuthering Heights more readily accessible to students and at the same time to challenge them to engage in independent critical reading
