Literary Arts and the Social Sciences Mary Alice Trent, Don Pardlow, Peggy Stevenson Ratliff, 2020-03-24 This book offers college professors and college students as well as the general reader a variety of ideas for developing techniques for creative and critical thinking and strategic writing and reading skills Additionally some of the contributions here present strategies to help students cultivate effective interpersonal skills and foster a greater understanding of cultural diversity and skills for collaboration in a culturally inclusive workplace Along with this the book also utilizes technology in innovative ways across the curriculum In teaching language courses literature courses psychology courses or education courses each contributor cultivates through teaching and mentoring the transformation of a student into a 21st century leader Upsetting

Composition Commonplaces Ian Barnard, 2014-07-15 In Upsetting Composition Commonplaces Ian Barnard argues that composition still retains the bulk of instructional practices that were used in the decades before poststructuralist theory discredited them. While acknowledging that some of the foundational insights of poststructuralist theory can be difficult to translate to the classroom, Barnard upends several especially intransigent tenets that continue to influence the teaching of writing and how students are encouraged to understand writing. Using six major principles of writing classrooms and textbooks—clarity, intent, voice, ethnography, audience, and objectivity—Barnard looks at the implications of poststructuralist theory for pedagogy. While suggesting some evocative poststructuralist pedagogical practices, the author focuses on diagnosing the fault lines of composition's refusal of poststructuralism rather than on providing solutions in the form of teaching templates. Upsetting Composition: Commonplaces addresses the need to more effectively engage in poststructuralist concepts in composition in an accessible and engaging voice that will advance the conversation about relations between the theory and teaching of writing.

Best Practices in Writing Instruction Steve Graham, Charles A. MacArthur, Jill Fitzgerald, 2013-03-19. Highly practical and accessible, this indispensable book provides clear-cut strategies for improving K-12 writing instruction. The contributors are leading authorities who demonstrate proven ways to teach different aspects of writing, with chapters on planning, revision, sentence construction, handwriting, spelling, and motivation. The use of the Internet in instruction is addressed, and exemplary approaches to teaching English language learners and students with special needs are discussed. The book also offers best practice guidelines for designing an effective writing program. Focusing on everyday applications of current scientific research, the book features many illustrative case examples and vignettes.

Why Writing Matters Awena Carter, Theresa Lillis, Sue Parkin, 2009-04-22. This book brings together the work of scholars from around the world—UK, Pakistan, US, South Africa, Hungary, Korea, Mexico—to illustrate and celebrate the many ways in which Roz Ivani has advanced the academic study of writing. Focusing on writing in different formal contexts of education, from primary through to further and higher education in a range of national contexts, the twenty-one original contributions in the book critically engage with theoretical and empirical issues raised in Ivani's influential body of work. In their exploration of writers' struggles with the demands of dominant literacy, the authors significantly extend understandings of writing practices in formal institutions. Organized around three themes central to Ivani's work—creativity and identity, pedagogy and research methodologies—the twelve chapters and nine personal and scholarly reflections reveal the powerful ways in which Ivani's work has influenced thinking in the field of writing and continues to open up avenues for future questioning and research.

Handbook of Research on Writing Charles Bazerman, 2009-03-04. The Handbook of Research on Writing ventures to sum up inquiry over the last few decades on what we know about writing and the many ways we know it. How do people write? How do they learn to write and develop as writers? Under what conditions and for what purposes do people write? What resources and technologies do we use to write? How did our current forms and practices of writing emerge within social history? What impacts has writing had on society and the individual? What does it mean to be and to learn to be an active participant in contemporary systems of meaning This cornerstone volume advances the field by aggregating the broad ranging interdisciplinary multidimensional strands of writing research and bringing them together into a common intellectual space Endeavoring to synthesize what has been learned about writing in all nations in recent decades it reflects a wide scope of international research activity with attention to writing at all levels of schooling and in all life situations Chapter authors all eminent researchers come from disciplines as diverse as anthropology archeology typography communication studies linguistics journalism sociology rhetoric composition law medicine education history and literacy studies The Handbook's 37 chapters are organized in five sections The History of Writing Writing in Society Writing in Schooling Writing and the Individual Writing as Text This volume in summing up what is known about writing deepens our experience and appreciation of writing in ways that will make teachers better at teaching writing and all of its readers better as individual writers It will be interesting and useful to scholars and researchers of writing to anyone who teaches writing in any context at any level and to all those who are just curious about writing

Making Writing Matter Ann M. Feldman, 2009-01-01 In Making Writing Matter Ann M Feldman explores how changing scholarship at engaged metropolitan universities offers an opportunity to redesign first year writing classes in ways that make students better writers An engaged university commits to a relationship with its surrounding metropolitan area with faculty members undertaking collaborative research with community partners The more vibrant participatory role of an engaged university allows students to link their academic studies to important public issues and gain real world writing experience such as writing press releases and letters to organizations This newly focused and contextualized research and scholarship at engaged universities shows students how discourse and writing matter in new ways

Assessment in the Second Language Writing Classroom

Deborah Crusan, 2010-07 Assessment in the Second Language Writing Classroom is a teacher and prospective teacher friendly book uncomplicated by the language of statistics. The book is for those who teach and assess second language writing in several different contexts: the IEP, the developmental writing classroom, and the sheltered composition classroom. In addition, teachers who experience a mixed population or teach cross-cultural composition will find the book a valuable resource. Other books have thoroughly covered the theoretical aspects of writing assessment, but none have focused as heavily as this book does on pragmatic classroom aspects of writing assessment. Further, no book to date has included an in-depth examination of the machine scoring of writing and its effects on second language writers. Crusan not only makes a compelling case for becoming knowledgeable about L2 writing assessment but offers the means to do so. Her highly accessible, thought-provoking presentation of the conceptual and practical dimensions of writing assessment, both for the classroom and on a larger scale, promises to engage readers who have previously found the technical detail of other works on assessment off-putting as well as those who have had no previous exposure to the study of assessment at all.

Academics

Engaging with Student Writing Jackie Tuck, 2017-07-14 Student writing has long been viewed as a problem in higher education in the UK. Moreover, the sector has consistently performed poorly in the National Student Survey with regard to assessment and feedback. Academics Engaging with Student Writing tackles these major issues from a new and unique angle, exploring the real-life experiences of academic teachers from different institutions as they set, support, read, respond to, and assess assignments undertaken by undergraduate students. Incorporating evidence from post-1992 universities, Oxbridge, members of the Russell Group, and others, this book examines working practices around student writing within the context of an increasingly market-oriented mass higher education system. Presenting a wealth of relevant examples from disciplines as diverse as History and Sports Science, Tuck makes extensive use of interviews, observations, texts, and audio recordings in order to explore the perspectives of academic teachers who work with student writers and their texts. This book will be of interest to researchers, academics, and postgraduate students in the fields of academic literacies, higher education language, and literacy language in higher education. English for academic purposes and assessment. Furthermore, academic teachers with experience of this crucial aspect of academic labour will welcome Tuck's pioneering work as an indispensable tool for making sense of their own engagement with student writers.
