

A cactus is a desert plant with a built-in security system. Since it's so dry in the desert, cacti store water inside their tough stems. Animals, who may be after the water or want to eat the cactus, get a surprise when they try to bite it! Cacti have sharp spines that protect against predators and also provide a bit of shade in the harsh desert.

Directions: Read about the cactus. Write about a cactus using your own knowledge or facts from the text.
