How Customizing in the U.S.A. and Canada

This equipment complies with FCC radiation exposure limits and with the government-mandated environmental and safety, the FCC radio frequency (RF) Exposure Guidelines. This equipment has very low levels of RF energy that is deemed to comply with the testing of specific absorption rate (SAR).

The available scientific evidence does not tell us that any health benefits are associated with using low power wireless devices. There is no peer-reviewed research that shows low power wireless devices are substantially safe. Low power wireless devices emit low levels of radio frequency energy (RFE) in the microwave range (often being said, between light levels of 100 picowatts health effects like heating tissue), exposure of less than 100 mW that does not produce heating effects (some unknown adverse health effects). Many studies of low power RFE exposures have not found any biological effects. Some studies have suggested that some biological effects might occur but such findings have not been confirmed by

This equipment has been tested and found to comply with the FCC radiation exposure limits for handheld mobile phones. Use of this equipment for all other purposes is not authorized. The FCC radio frequency (RF) exposure limits are:
