

1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the company is not meeting its sales targets.

2. The second step is to analyze the data. This involves looking at the sales figures for each product line and identifying any trends or patterns.

3. The third step is to develop a plan. This involves setting specific goals for each product line and determining the actions that need to be taken to achieve those goals.

4. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring the results.

5. The fifth step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the actual results to the targets and determining whether the plan was successful.

1. Identifying the subject
The first step in writing a research paper is to identify the subject. This involves choosing a topic that is both interesting and relevant to your field of study.
2. Formulating a research question
Once you have identified the subject, the next step is to formulate a research question. This question should be specific, measurable, and researchable.
3. Conducting a literature review
A literature review is a critical analysis of the existing research on your topic. It helps you to understand the current state of knowledge and to identify gaps in the literature.
4. Developing a thesis statement
A thesis statement is a concise statement that expresses your main argument or conclusion. It should be clear, specific, and defensible.
5. Organizing the paper
Organizing the paper involves creating a logical structure for your argument. This typically includes an introduction, a body with several paragraphs, and a conclusion.
6. Writing the paper
Writing the paper involves putting your ideas into clear, concise, and well-organized sentences. It is important to use evidence to support your claims and to cite your sources properly.
7. Revising and editing
Revising and editing are essential steps in the writing process. They allow you to refine your argument, improve your writing style, and correct any errors.

1. What is the purpose of the study?
The purpose of the study is to determine the effect of the use of a computer-based system on the performance of a task.
2. What is the research question?
The research question is: Does the use of a computer-based system improve the performance of a task?
3. What is the hypothesis?
The hypothesis is that the use of a computer-based system will improve the performance of a task.
4. What is the independent variable?
The independent variable is the use of a computer-based system.
5. What is the dependent variable?
The dependent variable is the performance of a task.
6. What is the control group?
The control group is the group of participants who did not use the computer-based system.
7. What is the experimental group?
The experimental group is the group of participants who used the computer-based system.
8. What is the conclusion?
The conclusion is that the use of a computer-based system improves the performance of a task.

NEW RESEARCH
The authors say that the results of their study suggest that the use of a computerized decision support system (DSS) can improve the accuracy of the diagnosis of a patient with a suspected diagnosis of a disease. The authors say that the DSS can help the physician to identify the most likely diagnosis and to recommend the most appropriate treatment. The authors say that the DSS can also help the physician to identify the most likely cause of a patient's symptoms and to recommend the most appropriate tests to perform. The authors say that the DSS can also help the physician to identify the most likely cause of a patient's symptoms and to recommend the most appropriate tests to perform.

DISCUSSION

There is a need for a more consistent and comprehensive approach to the management of the elderly patient. The current approach is often fragmented, with different professionals involved in different aspects of care. This can lead to confusion for the patient and their family, and may result in suboptimal care. A more integrated approach, involving all relevant professionals, is needed. This should include the patient and their family, as well as the healthcare professionals involved in their care. The aim should be to provide a holistic approach to care, addressing all aspects of the patient's health and well-being.
