Unproduction Studies and the American Film Industry James Fenwick, 2021-08-09 This book makes the case for unproduction studies the study of films left unmade unseen or unreleased as a radical discipline with the potential to uncover a shadow history of the American film industry Exploring the archival methods that can be utilised in this endeavour James Fenwick argues that a revisionist history is needed to understand the logic of the film industry finding that it has long been predicated on a system of unmade creativity in which finances resources and labour is invested into projects that production companies know will never be produced or have no intention of ever producing Using the Production Code Administration PCA records housed at the Margaret Herrick Library as a case study the book explores the material existence of the unmade and considers how archives and archival methods can be used to construct a shadow history that recovers the forgotten marginalised and overlooked figures in film history providing explanations for structural forces that contributed to the unmade Given its unique use of the unmade as an analytic for film history this book will be an essential read for scholars interested in film and media history performance studies film production and creative practice as well as to archivists and archival researchers

Temporality and Film Analysis Matilda Mroz,2012-08-06 Matilda Mroz argues that cinema provides an ideal opportunity to engage with ideas of temporal flow and change Temporality however remains an underexplored area of film analysis which frequently discusses images as though they were still rather than moving This book traces the operation of duration in cinema and argues that temporality should be a central concern of film scholarship In close readings of Michelangelo Antonioni s L Avventura Andrei Tarkovsky s Mirror and the ten short films that make up Krzysztof Kie lowski s Decalogue series Mroz highlights how film analysis must consider both particular moments in cinema which are critically significant and the way in which such moments interrelate in temporal flux She explores the concepts of duration and rhythm resonance and uncertainty affect sense and texture to bring a fresh perspective to film analysis and criticism Essential reading for students and scholars in Film Studies this engaging study will also be a valuable resource for critical theorists
