

Vitruvian Man Meets the Scientific Method Writing and Testing Appropriate Hypotheses

Leonardo da Vinci's drawing, Vitruvian Man, shows how the proportions of the human body fit perfectly into a circle and a square. This diagram by Leonardo da Vinci is an illustration of "Vitruvian Theory." According to Vitruvian Theory, the dimensions that describe our knowledge (our words) should fit snugly in the square that is our reality. In this analogy, you will replace the language of "Vitruvian Theory" with developing appropriate hypothesis Vitruvian Man.

1. Hypotheses are generalizable representations that are all observations or events for scientific purposes. A hypothesis is generally a test statement. Formulated by prediction with generally scientific or theoretical status using the phrase statement. Two examples:

- (a) "If you use blue and red flower electrolysis is added, after about 2 minutes the color change will be seen."
- (b) "If increasing physical activity causes a person to have elevated heart rate, then a 10-minute low-weight resistance of 10 minutes day."

Formulated hypothesis contains a dependent variable independent variable. The independent variable is the one that you change under dependent variable under one (the effect) and measure the other data. Formulate a hypothesis that says "If the independent is changed then the dependent will also change in a predictable manner." In this example, independent is the independent variable the dependent variable is the dependent variable. Formulate the hypothesis that says "If the independent is changed then the dependent will also change in a predictable manner." In this example, independent is the independent variable the dependent variable is the dependent variable.

PURPOSE

Students will be able to identify and write appropriate hypothesis regarding the relationship between the independent and dependent variables.
