Narratives of Addiction Savage Usury is the first book to argue in the face of more than a century's received wisdom that drug addiction and alcoholism are undoubtedly evidence of individual moral flaws However the sense of morality that underlies this book is completely severed from Christianity Instead it is influenced in particular by the writings of the nineteenth century German philosophers Arthur Schopenhauer and Frederick Nietzsche both of whom insisted that a genuine morality was actually incompatible with Christianity The sequence of chapters moves from addictions on the streets into rehab clinics and finally into the meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous This is the first book to argue that the search for pleasure drives alcoholism and drug addiction and not the numbing of pain Throughout the book I reject the claims of the medical profession as embodied by the American Medical Association that drug addiction and alcoholism are diseases and further argue that they do not have the authority to tell hundreds of millions of Americans that addiction is not a moral failing I also query throughout the book the claims of neuroscience psychology and the social sciences that addictions to alcohol and drugs are attributable to causes that their specific disciplines are best suited to understand I argue that there is nothing complex about addiction it is a simple behavioural disorder The language routinely employed to discuss addiction is similarly not complex just confused and so it is also the rhetoric of addiction discourse especially its use of simile metaphor and euphemism that this book evaluates Words without Walls Sheryl St. Germain, Sarah Shotland, 2015-03-10

Writing programs in prisons and rehabilitation centers have proven time and again to be transformative and empowering for people in need Halfway houses hospitals and shelters are all fertile ground for healing through the imagination and can often mean the difference for inmates and patients between just simply surviving and truly thriving It is in these settings that teachers and their students need reading that nourishes the soul and challenges the spirit Words without Walls is a collection of more than seventy five poems essays stories and scripts by contemporary writers that provide models for successful writing offering voices and styles that will inspire students in alternative spaces on their own creative exploration Created by the founders of the award winning program of the same name based at Chatham University the anthology strives to challenge readers to reach beyond their own circumstances and begin to write from the heart Each selection expresses immediacy writing that captures the imagination and conveys intimacy on the page revealing the power of words to cut to the quick and unfold the truth Many of the pieces are brief allowing for reading and discussion in the classroom and provide a wide range of content and genre touching on themes common to communities in need addiction and alcoholism family love and sex pain and hope prison recovery and violence Included is work by writers dealing with shared issues such as Dorothy Alison and Jesmyn Ward who write about families for whom struggle is a way of life or Natalie Kenvin and Toi Derricotte whose pieces reveal violence against women Also included are writings by those who have spent time in prison themselves such as Jimmy Santiago Baca Dwayne Betts Ken Lamberton and Etheridge Knight Eric Boyd ennobles the day he was released from jail Stephon Hayes reflects on what he sees from his prison window Terra Lynn evokes the experience of being put in solitary confinement Because in 2011 almost half of all prisoners in federal facilities were in for drug related offenses there are pieces by James Brown Nick Flynn and Ann Marlowe who explore their own addiction and alcoholism and by Natalie Diaz Scott Russell Sanders and Christine Stroud who write of crippling drug abuse by family and friends These powerful excerpts act as models for beginning writers and offer a vehicle to examine their own painful experiences Words without Walls demonstrates the power of language to connect people to reflect on the past and reimagine the future to confront complicated truths and to gain solace from pain and regret For students in alternative spaces these writings together with their own expressions reveal the same intense desire to write and share one's writing found in the Russian poet Irina Ratushinskaya who scratched her poems on bars of soap in a Gulag shower or the Turkish poet Nazim Hikmet who smuggled bits of poetry out of jail in the clothing of visiting friends Wole Soyinka in solitary confinement forty years ago wrote that creation is admission of great loneliness In these communal spaces our loneliness is lessened our vulnerability exposed and our honesty tested and through these revelatory writings students receive the necessary encouragement to share the whispering corners of their minds

Moon Jon Lupin The Poetry Bandit, 2016-10-26 When I first tried to get sober in 2014 my life was falling apart Even though through out years of drinking every day I was functional I held a job had a mortgage cars a family but I was coasting and some point I had lost the will to love and love life At that point I hadn't lost any of those things yet because of my drinking but I was on a road where I could very well lose everything sober I would rustle up a few months here and there but I was going insane Thinking on my own and pushed me to the brink of insanity Something wasn't working for me and so I kept going back out there With the encouragement from my wife and an ultimatum from my family I sought help from people who have lived through this to tell their stories including a dear Uncle In 2015 it finally stuck I established a sobriety date 07 29 15 but I still needed something to keep my hands busy during those key times in the evening when I used to drink the most My wife reminded me of all those lovely songs I am a songwriter as well and poems I used to write for her when we were dating and was embarking upon a writing journey of her own Knowing how it helped her she stuck a typewriter in my face and said write because I know you can Just over a year later My Sober Little Moon is born In this collection of poetry I chronicled the early days of sobriety during 2014 when I failed to see the light and in 2015 when I found an answer Each piece takes the reader through the pain the addiction caused others how I viewed himself my Love and the world as I learned to live life without alcohol In those early days and still to this day I identified with a wounded bear and the phases of the moon and I wanted that to play into the images in the book In late 2014 I took on the pen name of The Poetry Bandit because I felt like I was stealing back my love for language and poetry and to do something worthwhile with it I had an English Literature BA but had wasted all that knowledge and passion It was time for the Poetry Bandit to make up for lost time
