Step 1: Check for an Internet connection. Your Mac will use the connection to install certain setup. If the network requires a wireless password, ready Plug in the essential device. If you're using a new keyboard and trackball or mouse, turn them on or plug them into your Mac. If using an external display, plug it in and turn it on as well, but don't connect the peripherals. And of course, plug in your Mac. If you've read a trackball before, here's a tip: To lock down a tap on the trackball surface, turn your Mac's Motion trackball on. When you turn on the computer, the Mac will start up. Use the setup assistant. A series of windows will guide you for setup. If you have a Personal or Personal ID already, have a Personal ID. Use the Mac ID on your Mac. We recommend that you let the Mac turn on FileVault, iCloud Keychain, and Find My Mac. You can also let the Mac transfer information from the computer's Time Machine backup and turn on Migration Assistant. You'll be asked to create a new user account. You'll need to provide information to log in to your Mac. Having certain things installed, such as software, check for software updates. When the setup is finished, you'll see the Finder window with a menu bar at the top of the screen and the desktop. Click the Store icon in the Dock at the bottom of your screen. The Mac will install the software you've purchased. After the software is updated, you can connect printers and other peripherals and begin using your Mac. Migration Assistant will transfer data from the old Mac to the new Mac. Check software settings and power. Install all available software updates on both Mac computers. Install any updates for your third-party apps. Make sure the Mac has a menu bar. Check the System Preferences. The Mac will check the Mac's network connection. Connect the computers together. If both computers are using the same network, such as Wi-Fi or Ethernet, or connect them using a network cable. Then start up the old Mac in target disk mode. Or connect the new Mac to a Time Machine backup of your old Mac. Use Migration Assistant. On your new Mac, open Migration Assistant. The Assistant will find the old Mac in target disk mode. Follow the steps to transfer data from the old Mac to the new Mac. Open Migration Assistant. Apple Training Series Mac OS X Security and Mobility V10.6. Ph. D.
