The Cities on the Hill Thomas K. Ogorzalek, 2018-05-02

Over the second half of the 20th century American politics was reorganized around race as the tenuous New Deal coalition frayed and eventually collapsed What drove this change In The Cities on the Hill Thomas Ogorzalek argues that the answer lies not in the sectional divide between North and South but in the differences between how cities and rural areas govern themselves and pursue their interests on the national stage Using a wide range of evidence from Congress and an original dataset measuring the urbanicity of districts over time he shows how the trajectory of partisan politics in America today was set in the very beginning of the New Deal Both rural and urban America were riven with local racial conflict but beginning in the 1930s city leaders became increasingly unified in national politics and supportive of civil rights changes that sowed the seeds of modern liberalism As Ogorzalek powerfully demonstrates the red and blue shades of contemporary political geography derive more from rural and urban perspectives than clean state or regional lines but local institutions can help bridges the divides that keep Americans apart

Other chapters reveal the often unacknowledged yet necessary work parents do to meet their children's needs and enable schools to operate. A few chapters focus on challenges and paradoxes of including families and community members in policymaking processes including a case where parents demonstrated a preference for a policy that research demonstrates can be detrimental to their children's future education opportunities. Another set of chapters emphasizes the centrality of policy texts and how language influences the educational experiences and engagement of students and their families. Each chapter concludes with a discussion of implications of the research for educators, families, and other community partners.
