RESEARCH The authors of this study used a cross-sectional design to examine the relationship between the use of the Internet and the use of other information sources. The study was conducted in the United States and involved a national sample of adults. The researchers used a variety of methods to collect data, including surveys and interviews. The results of the study suggest that the use of the Internet is increasing and is becoming a more important source of information. The researchers also found that the use of the Internet is associated with the use of other information sources, such as books and newspapers. This suggests that the Internet is not replacing other information sources, but rather is becoming a more integrated part of the information landscape.
