Stuber, 2011-07-16 To date scholars in higher education have examined the ways in which students experiences in the classroom and the human capital they attain impact social class inequalities In this book Jenny Stuber argues that the experiential core of college life the social and extra curricular worlds of higher education operates as a setting in which social class inequalities manifest and get reproduced As college students form friendships and get involved in activities like Greek life study abroad and student government they acquire the social and cultural resources that give them access to valuable social and occupational opportunities beyond the college gates Yet students social class backgrounds also impact how they experience the experiential core of college life structuring their abilities to navigate their campus s social and extra curricular worlds Stuber shows that upper middle class students typically arrive on campus with sophisticated maps and navigational devices to guide their journeys while working class students are typically less well equipped for the journey She demonstrates as well that students social interactions friendships and extra curricular involvements also shape and are shaped by their social class worldviews the ideas they have about their own and others class identities and their beliefs about where they and others fit within the class system By focusing on student social class worldviews this book provides insight into how identities and consciousness are shaped within educational settings Ultimately this examination of what happens inside the college gates shows how which higher education serves as an avenue for social reproduction while also providing opportunities for the contestation of class inequalities

Autonomy, Accountability and Social Justice provides an account of recent developments in English state education with a particular focus on the academisation of schooling It examines how head teachers, teachers and others working in diverse education settings navigate the current policy environment The authors provide readers with insight into the complex decision making processes that shape school responses to current educational agendas and examine the social justice implications of these responses The book draws on Nancy Fraser's social justice framework and her theorising of neoliberalism to explore current tensions associated with moves towards both greater autonomy for and accountability of state schooling These tensions are presented through four case studies that centre upon 1 a group of local authority primary schools 2 an academy chain 3 a co-operative secondary school and 4 an alternative education setting The book identifies the emancipatory possibilities of these approaches amid the complex demands of autonomy and accountability seizing English schools Informed by a consideration of market parameters and social protectionist ideals this examination provides rich insights into how English schools have emancipatory capacity Autonomy, Accountability and Social Justice makes a major theoretical contribution to understandings of how the market is working alongside the regulation of schooling and the implications of this for social justice By drawing on the experiences of those working in schools it demonstrates that the tensions associated with autonomy and accountability within the current education policy environment can be both productive and unproductive for social justice The Portable
