Policing and Public Trust Eccy de Jonge,2020-11-24 The treatment of victims and complainants by the police is examined in this pioneering new work Case studies based on interviews carried out at the University of Portsmouth s Institute of Criminal Justice Studies in the United Kingdom reveal that victims and complainants are routinely discredited by police agencies Whilst in the United States victims may include anyone subjected to police interrogation particularly those of African American origin complainants across the globe may include victims of rape bereaved families and individual officers The reason why certain victims and complainants are targeted by policing agencies is complex and leads to an investigation into police bias covert practices and one of the most common areas of policing road death investigations Consequently other members of the criminal justice system such as prosecutors coroners and hospital pathologists medical examiners are shown to often corroborate the police s version of events compromising victims rights and the very nature of justice Given recent miscarriages of justice and public relation campaigns on behalf of the police Eccy de Jonge argues that never before has a greater openness on the inner workings of the police been needed to fully support the interests of those the criminal justice system is meant to serve HC 129 - High Speed Rail (London - West Midlands) Bill Great Britain. Friend, W.N. Jessop, 2016-08-03 Local Government and Strategic Choice Second Edition is the result of a study of policy formation in the City Council of Coventry during a four year period This edition is a reappraisal of the earlier edition with an emphasis on connective planning Part I describes the planning strategies made in an urban setting This part explains the City and the City Council organization of the local authority decision making mechanisms developmental planning including land use school system planning and cross departmental planning Part II is a study of city planning as a process of strategic choice that has been altered in many different ways depending on the purpose This part also discusses the problems encountered in the planning process such as the existence of organization boundaries in the government sector Part III deals with a fictional case that relates the uncertainties and political realities of decision making in an urban setting The case studies cover land allocation and development tax and traffic issues Part IV discusses organizational challenge and also touches in some way on the future organizational structure of local governments This text then explains the need for connective planning of how individuals build flexible networks among decision making agencies to serve the various interests of both the private and government sectors This book is suitable for sociologists city administrators and officials local government officials heads of government agencies and heads of planning and engineering departments of local government units Traffic and Transport Psychology Geoffrey Underwood, 2005-06-09 Just as our transport systems become more and more important to our economic and social well being so they become more and more crowded and more at risk from congestion disruption and collapse Technology and engineering can provide part of the solution but the complete solution will need to take account of the behaviour of the users of the transport networks The role of psychologists in this is to understand how people make decisions about the alternative modes of transport and about the alternative routes to their destinations to understand how novice and other vulnerable users can develop safe and effective behaviours how competent users can operate within the transport system optimally and within their perceptual and cognitive limitations The contributions to this volume address these issues of how the use of our transport systems can be improved by taking into account knowledge of the behaviour of the people who use the systems Topics discussed include driver training and licensing driver impairment road user attitudes and behaviour enforcement and behaviour change driver support systems and the psychology of mobility and transport mode choice This work will be of value not only to psychologists but to all transport professionals interested in the application of psychology to traffic
