

Chapter 4 – Weygandt Managerial Accounting 8e Challenge Exercises

CE 4-1

Smithson, Inc. produces two types of gas grills: a family model and a deluxe model. Smithson's controller has decided to use a plantwide overhead rate based on direct labor costs. The president of the company recently heard of activity-based costing and wants to see how the results would differ if this system were used. Two activity cost pools were developed: machining and machine setup. Presented below is information related to the company's operations:

	Family Model	Deluxe Model
Direct labor costs	$75,000	$150,000
Machine hours	2,000	2,000
Setup hours	200	800
Traditional Overhead costs	$150,000	$300,000
ABC - Overhead costs	$171,000	$279,000

Total estimated overhead costs are $450,000. Overhead cost allocated to the machining activity cost pool is $270,000 and $180,000 is allocated to the machine setup activity cost pool.

Instructions

- Compute the overhead rate using the traditional (plantwide) approach.
overhead rate = $450,000 / 225,000 = $2$ based on Direct labor costs
- Compute the overhead rates using the activity-based costing approach.
overhead rate for machining activity = $270,000 / 4,000 = $67.5$ per Machine hour overhead rate for machine setup activity = $180,000 / 1,000 = $180$ per Setup hours
- Determine the difference in allocation between the two approaches.
- Smithson, Inc. decided to implement the activity-based costing approach and was quite successful in its use. However, the controller is wondering if instead of only two activity cost pools, they should expand to three activity cost pools based on the following:

	Family Model	Deluxe Model
Direct labor costs	$75,000	$150,000
Machine hours	2,000	2,000
Setup hours	200	800
Packaging hours	50	75

The estimated overhead of $450,000 is allocated as follows: machining activity cost pool $240,000, machine set up $170,000 and packaging $40,000.

- Determine the overhead rates using the activity-based costing approach with three cost pools.
overhead rates based on Machine hours = $240,000 / 4,000 = $60$ overhead rates based on Setup hours = $170,000 / 1,000 = $170$ overhead rates based on Packaging hours = $40,000 / 125 = $320$
- Determine the overhead allocation for the family model and the deluxe model using three activity cost pools. What is the difference in allocation between two activity cost pools and three activity cost pools? Is the difference in allocation worth using the third activity cost pool?
