Childhood in Manchester

Frances Eliza Hodgson was born in 1849 at 141 York Street in the Cheetham Hill township of the Borough of Manchester, England. She was the third of five children of Edwin Hodgson, an ironmonger from Doncaster in Yorkshire, and his wife Eliza Boond from a well-to-do Manchester family. Hodgson owned a business in Deansgate selling quality ironmongery and brass goods. The family lived comfortably, employing a maid and a nurse maid. Frances was the middle of the five Hodgson children with two older brothers and two younger sisters. In 1852 the family moved to a more spacious home with greater access to outdoor space. Barely a year later, with his wife pregnant for a fifth time, Hodgson died of a stroke, leaving the family without income. Frances was cared for by her grandmother while her mother took over running the family business. From her grandmother, who bought her books, Frances learned to love reading, in particular her first book, The Flower Book, which had coloured illustrations and poems. Because of their reduced income, Eliza had to give up their house and moved with her children to Seedley Grove near Pendleton, where they lived with relatives in a home that included a large enclosed garden in which Frances enjoyed playing. For a year, Frances went to a small school run by two women where she first saw a book about fairies. When her mother moved the family to Salford, Frances mourned the lack of flowers and gardens. Their home was located in Islington Square, adjacent to an area with severe overcrowding and poverty that defied description, as described by Friedrich Engels, who lived in Manchester at the time.

That Lass O' Lowrie's \(1877\). By: Frances Hodgson Burnett Frances Hodgson Burnett, 2018-04-23. First novel by the author of The Little Princess, The Secret Garden, and Little Lord Fauntleroy. Frances Eliza Hodgson Burnett (24 November 1849 – 29 October 1924) was a British novelist and playwright. She is best known for the three children's novels: Little Lord Fauntleroy (published in 1885), A Little Princess (1905), and The Secret Garden (1911). Frances Eliza Hodgson was born in Cheetham, Manchester, England. After her father died in 1852, the family fell on straitened circumstances, and in 1865, she emigrated to the United States, settling in Jefferson City, Tennessee. There, Frances began writing to help earn money for the family, publishing stories in magazines from the age of 19. In 1870, her mother died, and in 1872, Frances married Swan Burnett, who became a medical doctor. The Burnetts lived for two years in Paris, where their two sons were born, before returning to the United States to live in Washington, D.C. Burnett then began to write novels, the first of which, That Lass o' Lowrie's, was published to good reviews.

Little Lord Fauntleroy was published in 1886 and made her a popular writer of children's fiction although her romantic adult novels written in the 1890s were also popular. She wrote and helped to produce stage versions of Little Lord Fauntleroy and A Little Princess. Burnett enjoyed socializing and lived a lavish lifestyle. Beginning in the 1880s she began to travel to England frequently and in the 1890s bought a home there where she wrote The Secret Garden. Her oldest son Lionel died of tuberculosis in 1890 which caused a relapse of the depression she had struggled with for much of her life. She divorced Swan Burnett in 1898, married Stephen Townsend in 1900 and divorced him in 1902. A few years later she settled in Nassau County, Long Island, where she died in 1924 and is buried in Roslyn Cemetery. In 1936 a memorial sculpture by Bessie Potter Vonnoh was erected in her honour in Central Park's Conservatory Garden. The statue depicts her two famous Secret Garden characters, Mary and Dickon.

Childhood in Manchester: Frances Eliza Hodgson was born in 1849 at 141 York Street in Cheetham, Manchester. From a well-to-do Manchester family, Hodgson owned a business in Deansgate selling ironmongery and brass goods. The family lived comfortably, employing a maid and a nurse maid. Frances had two older brothers and two younger sisters. In 1852 the family moved about a mile further along York Street to a more spacious home in a newly built terrace opposite St Luke's Church, with greater access to outdoor space. Barely a year later, with his wife pregnant for a fifth time, Hodgson died suddenly of a stroke, leaving the family without an income. Frances was cared for by her grandmother while her mother took over running the family business. From her grandmother, who bought her books, Frances learned to love reading, in particular her first book, The Flower Book, which had coloured illustrations and poems. When her mother moved the family to Islington Square, Salford, Frances mourned the lack of flowers and gardens. Their new home was located in a gated square of faded gentility adjacent to an area with severe overcrowding and poverty that defied description, according to Friedrich Engels, who lived in Manchester at the time.

A Lady of Quality: Frances Hodgson Burnett, 2016-11-14. A Lady of Quality, first published in 1896, is one of Frances Hodgson Burnett's novels for adults and treads a completely different path to her famous work The Secret Garden. It tells the story of Clorinda Wildairs and is set in the 1600s. Her mother dies giving birth to her and her father has no interest in his three daughters. He lives a life of debauchery while his youngest daughter picks up some interesting habits in the stables. When he comes across the child and sees her riding his favourite horse, he takes a fancy to her. For a few years she is the renowned companion of drunkards until she transforms herself to catch a husband. One is particularly taken with her but her refusal has reverberations through the years. I have to say I struggled with this one. The heroine is too changeable. She goes from being the companion of a bunch of old men to being the prize debutante to being a perfect wife There are a lot of changes in her character the reader s meant to accept just because she s stunningly beautiful and wondrous and everyone loves her as we are told on numerous occasions Frequently I felt as if I was actually reading a novel The handiwork was evident and it was jarring Two thirds in the book suddenly becomes interesting with an unexpected event that I expected to throw the heroine into turmoil It didn t and her life continued pretty much in the same vein I felt cheated by the ending and more than a little irate at the time I d wasted with Clorinda Far more interesting though was her sister Anne who is meek and mild and knows everything Clorinda does For me Anne is the actual lady of quality and not her beautiful fabulous sister This book suffered from a lack of direction and the ability of the author to immerse herself so much in the heroine at the cost of believability Not a great read by any stretch of the imagination children's novels Little Lord Fauntleroy published in 1885, A Little Princess 1905 and The Secret Garden 1911. Frances Eliza Hodgson was born in Cheetham, Manchester, England. After her father died in 1852, the family fell on straitened circumstances and in 1865 emigrated to the United States, settling near Knoxville, Tennessee. There Frances began writing to help earn money for the family, publishing stories in magazines from the age of 19. In 1870 her mother died and in 1872 Frances married Swan Burnett, who became a medical doctor. The Burnetts lived for two years in Paris, where their two sons were born, before returning to the United States to live in Washington, D.C. Burnett then began to write novels, the first of which, That Lass o' Lowrie's, was published to good reviews. Little Lord Fauntleroy was published in 1886 and made her a popular writer of children's fiction, although her romantic adult novels written in the 1890s were also popular.
