Analytics Bernard J. Jansen, 2022-06-01 This lecture presents an overview of the Web analytics process with a focus on providing insight and actionable outcomes from collecting and analyzing Internet data. The lecture first provides an overview of Web analytics, providing in essence a condensed version of the entire lecture. The lecture then outlines the theoretical and methodological foundations of Web analytics in order to make obvious the strengths and shortcomings of Web analytics as an approach. These foundational elements include the psychological basis in behaviorism and methodological underpinning of trace data as an empirical method. These foundational elements are illuminated further through a brief history of Web analytics from the original transaction log studies in the 1960s through the information science investigations of library systems to the focus on Websites, systems and applications. Following a discussion of on-going interaction data within the clickstream created using log files and page tagging for analytics of Website and search logs, the lecture then presents a Web analytic process to convert these basic data to meaningful key performance indicators in order to measure likely converts that are tailored to the organizational goals or potential opportunities. Supplementary data collection techniques are addressed, including surveys and laboratory studies. The overall goal of this lecture is to provide implementable information and a methodology for understanding Web analytics in order to improve Web systems, increase customer satisfaction and target revenue through effective analysis of user Website interactions. Communication Technologies represent the largest network of human online communication ever. Language is the material that enables communication to flow in this ever growing digital world of emails, webs, blogs, and SMS messages. And language as always transforms itself to meet the rapid demands of this virtual universe. As a result, a myriad of changes have occurred and are continuously occurring in the language of Internet users. The Texture of Internet explores the latest linguistic issues regarding these language transformations, focusing on texting, email writing, website texture, new digital genres such as blogs, and the potential applications of Internet to specific linguistic professional settings, e.g. translation, linguistic research, or language teaching. This book will become a key reference for anyone interested in unveiling the intricacies of language use in our technological environment. Santiago Posteguillo, María José Esteve, and Lluís Gea Valor have compiled an excellent set of contributions from Spain, United Kingdom, and Hong Kong on the analysis of language use in Internet and Information and Communication Technologies. They all are researchers and teachers of Languages for Specific Purposes and Linguistics at Universitat Jaume I in Castellón, Spain. Their experience in Internet language analysis has produced a most valuable volume on the matter.

Web Archives and Web Archiving Asger Harlung, 2025-04-23. Web archives are repositories of content preserved from the World Wide Web, not to be confused with other types of archives that offer services or content online. Web archives preserve content that otherwise tends to disappear or change rapidly, which probably makes them the most important initiative towards preservation of cultural heritage in our age. Never before have the actions, ongoing sentiments, trends, decision processes in politics, business, and industry, institutions, news media, entertainment providers, interest groups, and individuals been documented or preserved at the level of detail offered by ongoing and systematic preservation of the Web, with content from all levels of society. This book strives to present the underlying methods and reasons for preserving web content, with a focus on the principles rather than specific methods that may become obsolete almost as quickly as web pages may disappear, and on detailing the nature of the archived results with its potentials and pitfalls.
