Photosynthesis Under Fluctuating Light Michele Grieco,Fiamma Longoni,Stefano Santabarbara,Jeremy Harbinson,2023-06-27 Photosynthesis is a fundamental process that drives almost all life on Earth and is the motor of agriculture and food production For several decades its basic functioning has been investigated mainly at steady state under constant illumination This approach was necessary to understand the basic mechanisms underlying the light reactions and carbon assimilation However this condition does not reflect the natural environment where plants experience changes in both the intensity and spectrum of irradiance in a wide range of time scales spanning from seconds to several hours In recent years it has become clear that the processes allowing the photosynthetic apparatus to adapt to changes in irradiance are of paramount importance to plant fitness and productivity Therefore increased research effort has been directed towards studying the regulation of photosynthetic activity under fluctuating light i e upon the variation of light intensity or light spectrum This is important for understanding how photosynthetic organisms cope with natural environmental conditions Fluctuating light itself constitutes a potentially stressful condition because depending on the scale of the fluctuation it can transiently generate extreme redox and transthylakoid potentials and forces the photosynthetic machinery to be re adjusted Not surprisingly plants have evolved several mechanisms allowing a prompt response to these normal environmental events In natural environments photosynthetic organisms often have to cope with fluctuating light while experiencing other kinds of stress such as heat nutrient deficiency drought and pathogen attacks Therefore the study of combined stresses is essential for understanding the acclimation to realistic environmental conditions
