New Concepts for Parallel Object-Relational Query Processing Michael Jaedicke, 2001-10-17 During the last few years parallel object relational database management systems have emerged as the leading data management technology on the market. These systems are extensible by user defined data types and user defined functionality for the data. This work focuses on the efficient parallel execution of user defined functionality. The main contributions describe techniques to support data parallelism for user defined scalar and aggregate functions and intra function parallelism for the execution of a scalar function on a large object and a new technology to provide extensibility with regard to new set oriented database operations that can efficiently implement user defined functionality in parallel object relational database management systems. Exim Philip Hazel, 2001. Exim delivers electronic mail both local and remote. It's the default mail transport agent installed on some Linux systems; it runs on many versions of Unix and is suitable for any TCP/IP network with any combination of hosts and end user mail software. Exim is growing in popularity because it's open source, scalable, and rich in features. These include compatibility with sendmail options, database lookups, support for regular expressions, and many kinds of address parsing, sophisticated error handling, and parameters for improving performance. Best of all, Exim is easy to configure. You never have to deal with ruleset 3 or worry that a misplaced asterisk will cause an inadvertent mail bomb. Philip Hazel, the creator of Exim, is the author of this official guide designed for access to quick information when you're in a hurry, as well as thorough coverage of more advanced material. Practical Hive Scott Shaw, Andreas François Vermeulen, Ankur Gupta, David Kjerrumgaard, 2016-08-27.
