Temperament And Personality Development Across The Life Span:

Temperament and Personality Development Across the Life Span Victoria J. Molfese, Dennis L. Molfese, Robert R. McCrae, 2000-06-01 This is the third book in a series of Across the Life Span volumes that has come from the Biennial Life Span Development Conferences. The authors, well known in their fields, present theoretical and research issues important for the understanding of temperament in infancy and childhood as well as personality in adolescence and adulthood. Current findings placed within theoretical and historical contexts make each chapter distinctive. The chapter authors focus on their work and its implications for temperament and personality issues across the life span. In addition, they include summaries of research by other investigators and theorists placing their work and that of others in a lifespan perspective.

accessible and reader friendly Gene-Environment Interplay in Interpersonal Relationships across the Lifespan Briana N. Horwitz, Jenae M. Neiderhiser, 2015-07-03 Intriguing new findings on how genes and environments work together through different stages of life take the spotlight in this significant collection. Studies from infancy to late adulthood show both forces as shaping individuals' relationships within family and non-family contexts and examine how these relationships in turn continue to shape the individual. Transitional periods in which individuals become more autonomous and relationships and personal identities become more complicated receive special emphasis. In addition, chapters shed light on the extent to which the quantity and quality of genetic and environmental influence may shift across and even within life stages. Included in the coverage: Gene-environment interplay in parenting young children; The sibling relationship as a source of shared environment; Gene-environment transactions in childhood and adolescent problematic peer relationships; Toward a developmentally sensitive and genetically informed perspective on popularity; Spouse, parent and co-worker roles and relationships in adulthood; The family system as a unit of clinical care; the role of genetic systems. Behavioral geneticists, clinical psychologists and family therapists will find in Gene-Environment Interplay in Interpersonal Relationships across the Lifespan a window into current thinking on the subject, new perspectives for understanding clients and cases and ideas for further study.

Handbook of Psychology, Developmental Psychology Irving B. Weiner, Donald K. Freedheim, 2003-01-03 This work provides an overview of cognitive, intellectual, personality and social development across the lifespan with attention to infancy, early childhood, middle childhood, adolescence and early middle, late adulthood. Chapters cover a broad range of core topics including language acquisition, identity formation and the role of family, peers, school and workplace influences on continuity and change over time. Psychology at the Turn of the Millennium, Volume 2 Lars Backman, Claes von Hofsten, 2002-04-04

These two volumes represent the cutting edge of contemporary theory and research in psychological science. Based on the keynote and state of the art lectures from the 27th International Congress of Psychology, the volumes feature a collection of chapters written by international leaders in psychological scholarship. The chapters reflect the diversity of current research topics in psychology where old boundaries have become obsolete and subdivisions from the past merge to form new objects of study. Volume 1 addresses cognitive, biological and health perspectives. It includes sections on the neural mechanisms underlying psychological processes, the core areas in experimental psychology: perception, attention, learning and memory; the multiple aspects of psychological health; the interaction between cognitive and emotional processes and higher cognitive processes with special focus on decision making and language. Volume 2 deals with social, developmental and clinical perspectives. The sections highlight human development across the life span, basic and applied issues in personality, emotion and clinical psychology, social psychology ranging from experimental work through social constructivism and gender.
