Gláucio Costa de Menezes, Isabel Lausanne Fontgalland, The environment has always been a great source of raw material for humanity whether this matter is of plant animal or mineral origin The vast majority of needs are met through factor factor and factor product correlations which indicate in their genesis the nature of economic development However numerous scientific works especially those produced by scholars of the economic sciences demonstrate that some resources made available by nature are finite and it should therefore be sought to develop strategic measures so that their use occurs in the most rational way possible Among these strategies is since the 1970s the creation and dissemination of so called protected areas whose main scope is the preservation of the environment for future generations Gsscore Concept Mapping

Griffith, Christopher J. Still, Colin P. Osborne, 2019-08-02 Early biogeographers such as Alexander von Humboldt recognized the broad scale coupling of vegetation and climate This observation shaped the modern biome concept which organizes ecosystems by assumed relationships to environmental controls This approach has been criticized for missing key impacts on the distribution and functioning of biomes like historical contingency biogeographic history disturbance ecology and evolution Are biomes still a convenient framework for organizing our understanding of biodiversity What factors determine the functional differences among and within biomes and at what spatial temporal and phylogenetic scales are those drivers most important How can we better represent the functional characteristics and dynamics of ecosystems This Research Topic highlights the latest discussions and research on biomes drawing from a wide range of approaches spanning from macroecology and phylogeography to remote sensing and modelling ecosystem responses to global change
