Hugh Whittaker,2024-01-23 Japan is attempting to build a new economy It goes by various names such as Society 5.0 sustainable capitalism and new form of capitalism It is to be constructed through digital and green transformation and a virtuous cycle of growth and distribution The effort faces strong headwinds including demographic decline and ageing Japan's external energy dependence and geopolitical turbulence and the legacies of Japan's lost decades Nonetheless since 2015 a path has been identified that steers between Big Tech market oligopoly on the one hand and an overbearing state on the other For others facing the same post neoliberal sustainability transformation challenges as Japan this public private coordinated building effort is noteworthy Building a New Economy uses an evolutionary conceptual framework of states and markets organizations and technology and institutional change It shows how the institutional coherence of the manufacturing centred postwar model broke down and was followed by the ideological and institutional dissonance of the lost decades However new institutional building blocks have been identified and partially assembled which could lead Japan towards a new model which is more open and adaptive These blocks include a reconfigured developmental state and new forms of coordination with and within the corporate sector at times encompassing civil society Importantly for a country that has favoured social stability over creative destruction and has struggled with change the path forward may require controlled disequilibrium of institutions rather than tight coherence Society 5.0 and the new form of capitalism claim to be people centred making them so will be the crucial challenge
