Factors impacting African women's doctoral success
Lifutso Tsephe, 2023-12-20 With the knowledge economy playing such a critical role in global economic development increasing the number of Doctor of Philosophy degree PhD graduates in higher education institutions worldwide has been imperative The knowledge economy emphasises the importance of critical thinkers and researchers as doctoral education cultivates thinkers and researchers and equips them to participate in development African identifying females account for 30% of doctoral graduates in sub Saharan African countries even when PhD education is viewed as an entry into academia and a gateway to careers in research and other disciplines There is a paucity of research regarding PhD graduates who are specifically women in Africa as a result there is little information about their attributes to success in PhD studies what opportunities and freedoms they have and what challenges they face during their PhD journey along with their motivation to overcome these challenges so that they can achieve their goals It is essential for women in Africa to complete their PhD education to contribute to the development of their countries as some scholars believe no nation can grow without women s participation Thus modern civilisation is the result of males and females cooperating in modern society Even though some women complete their PhD studies there is scant research on what strategies enabled their success Instead the reasons for their attrition are known This book aims to contribute to PhD education scholarship specifically for women in Africa It allows women in Africa to narrate their PhD experiences through resilience theory and the capabilities approach lenses

An Ambulance on Safari Melissa Diane Armstrong, 2020-10-22 During the apartheid era thousands of South African political activists militants and refugees fled arrest by crossing into neighbouring southern African countries Although they had escaped political oppression many required medical attention during their period of exile An Ambulance on Safari describes the efforts of the African National Congress ANC to deliver emergency healthcare to South African exiles and in the same stroke to establish political legitimacy and foster anti apartheid sentiment on an international stage Banned in South Africa from 1960 to 1990 the ANC continued its operations underground in anticipation of eventual political victory styling itself as a government in waiting In 1977 it created its own Health Department which it presented as an alternative medical service and the nucleus of a post apartheid healthcare system By publicizing its own democratic policies as well as the racist practices of healthcare delivery in South Africa the Health Department won international attention for its cause and provoked widespread condemnation of the apartheid state While the global campaign was unfolding successfully the department's provision of healthcare on the ground was intermittent as patients confronted a fledgling medical system experiencing various growing pains Still the legacy of the department would be long as many medical professionals who joined the post apartheid Department of Health in South Africa had been trained in exile during the liberation struggle With careful attention to both the international publicity campaign and on the ground medical efforts An Ambulance on Safari reveals the intricate and significant political role of the ANC's Health Department and its influence on the anti apartheid movement
