move from the classroom to the main office organize the office meet staff tour the building write a newsletter examine data and visit community venues Nothing in this conversation described strategies for redefining the beliefs and values of an entrenched school culture With this conversation in mind I made it a point in my formal and informal contacts with school administrators to always ask the question What would you do in the first day in your new office to change your school s culture The most common responses involved reviewing district documents touring facilities meeting staff listening to stakeholders and managing systems In each conversation school leaders populated their responses with the current jargon of school reform learning communities data mining standards based curriculum differentiated learning common core standards formative assessment race to the top continuous improvement etc While these responses encompass reasonable behaviors on the first day in the main office not one of these actions possesses the capacity to connect educational values expressed in school mission statements why are we here to daily organizational and instructional routines Each activity gives the appearance of leading but produces no connections between beliefs values and practices Although none of these responses would make or break a school culture they do represent a pattern of thinking and behaving that holds out little possibility of fundamentally changing a school s culture
