Research and Practice in Multiple Criteria Decision Making Yacov Y. Haimes,Ralph E. Steuer,2012-12-06 During the past two decades the consideration of multiple objectives in modeling and decision making has grown by leaps and bounds The nineties in particular have seen the emphasis shift from the dominance of single objective modeling and optimization toward an emphasis on multiple objectives The proceedings of this Conference epitomize these evolutionary changes and contribute to the important role that the field of multiple criteria decision making MCDM now plays in planning design operational management and policy decisions Of special interest are the contributions of MCDM to manufacturing engineering For example it has recently been recognized that optimal single objective solutions have often been pursued at the expense of the much broader applicability of designs and solutions that satisfy multiple objectives In particular the theme MCDM and Its Worldwide Role in Risk Based Decision Making of the XIVth International Conference on Multiple Criteria Decision Making Charlottesville Virginia USA June 8 12 1998 represents the growing importance of risk cost benefit analysis in decision making and in engineering design and manufacturing In such systems minimizing the of rare and extreme events emerges as an essential objective that risk complements the minimization of the traditional expected value of risk along with the objectives attached to cost and performance These proceedings include forty five papers that were presented at the Conference A variety of techniques have been proposed for solving multiple criteria decision making problems The emphasis and style of the different techniques largely reflect the fields of expertise of their developers

Non-Bayesian Decision Theory Martin Peterson, 2008-06-06 For quite some time philosophers economists and statisticians have endorsed a view on rational choice known as Bayesianism The work on this book has grown out of a feeling that the Bayesian view has come to dominate the academic community to such an extent that an alternative non Bayesian position is rarely researched Needless to say I think this is a pity Non Bayesian positions deserve to be examined with much greater care and the present work is an attempt to defend what I believe to be a coherent and reasonably detailed non Bayesian account of decision theory The main thesis I defend can be summarised as follows Rational agents minimise subjective expected utility but contrary to what is claimed by Bayesians utility and subjective probability should not be defined in terms of preferences over uncertain prospects. On the contrary, rational decision makers need only consider preferences over certain outcomes. It will be shown that utility and probability functions derived in a non-Bayesian manner can be used for generating preferences over uncertain prospects that support the principle of maximising subjective expected utility. To some extent, this non-Bayesian view gives an account of what modern decision theory could have been like had decision theorists not entered the Bayesian path discovered by Ramsey, de Finetti, Savage, and others. I will not discuss all previous non-Bayesian positions presented in the literature.

Integrating Climate Change Actions Into Local Development
Livia Bizikova, John Robinson, Stewart Cohen, 2015-02-13

To date, climate change adaptation and mitigation have been treated separately, both in research and in the climate negotiations. However, a growing body of literature is now being developed that points to actual and potential synergies and trade-offs between responses to climate change and sustainability. This literature has evolved in a spontaneous way with diverse approaches and no common methodology to help practitioners explicitly plan for these synergies. This special issue of the Climate Policy journal addresses this gap between scientific knowledge and practitioners' needs by focussing on linkages between climate change and sustainable development at the level of conceptual framework and methods. In particular, the papers address in an integrated way local development options involving both adaptation and mitigation in order to promote resilience to climate change in human and natural systems. The special issue provides policy and methodological guidelines for linking local development pathways with responses to climate change based on collaboration between local practitioners, the public, and scientists.

Decision Modeling and Behavior in Complex and Uncertain Environments
Tamar Kugler, J. Cole Smith, Terry Connolly, Young-Jun Son, 2008-07-20

On February 27 and 28 of 2006, the University of Arizona held a workshop entitled Decision Modeling and Behavior in Uncertain and Complex Environments sponsored by the Air Force Office of Scientific Research under a Multidisciplinary University Research Initiative (MURI) grant. The purpose of the workshop was to assemble preeminent researchers studying problems at the interface of behavioral and cognitive science, decision analysis, and operations research. This book is a compilation of 14 chapters based on the presentations given during the workshop. These contributions are grouped into four general areas which describe in some detail the challenges in conducting novel research in this field. Part One is concerned with the need for integrating decision analysis and behavioral models. Robert T. Clemen discusses how the fields of behavioral search and decision analysis have diverged over time and makes a compelling case to establish new links between the disciplines. He recommends leveraging lessons learned from behavioral studies within prescriptive decision analysis studies and evaluating the practical impact of those prescriptive techniques in helping decision makers achieve their objectives. Jenna L. Marquard and Stephen M. Robinson address eleven common traps that face decision model analysts and users. An understanding of these traps leads to an understanding of modeling features that either help or hurt the decision-making process. The authors link theory and practice by examining a set of case studies across a diverse array of model scenarios and provide a checklist of recommendations for analysts confronted by these eleven traps Great Decision-Making Skills Corona Brezina,2008-01-15 Decision making is one of the most important skills when it comes to working This book teaches young people how to plan for the future solve problems and to communicate their decisions effectively for workplace success Risk: A Very Short Introduction Baruch Fischhoff,John Kadvany,John David Kadvany,2011-05-26 Risks are everywhere They come from many sources including crime diseases accidents terror climate change finance and intimacy They arise from our own acts and they are imposed on us In this Very Short Introduction Fischhoff and Kadvany draw on both the sciences and humanities to show what all risks have in common Do we care about losing money health reputation or peace of mind How much do we care about things happening now or in the future To ourselves or to others All risks require thinking hard about what matters to us before we make decisions about them based on past experience scientific knowledge and future uncertainties Using conceptual frameworks such as decision theory and behavioural decision research we examine the science and practice of creating measures of risk and look at how scientists apply probability by combining historical records scientific theories and expert judgement Showing what science has learned about how people deal with risks and applying these to diverse everyday examples the authors demonstrate how we move from understanding a risk to making a choice in everyday life
