STEP 13: WEAVE CABLE Thread the two interchangeable cables (one red and one blue) into the cable slot, one cable in each of the two cable-feeding channels (see photo). Connect the cables to the ground and power terminals on the back of the power supply. The ground cable will connect to the ground terminal and the power cable will connect to the power terminal. Double-check the connections and the polarity.

STEP 12: DECIDE PRIORITIES. Research and report the political and social issues that are likely to be the top priority issues. Consider how the Republican Party's political goals will best be achieved with its ideological strength and power base. Also align with the long-term of a full-term power rotation. Take additional steps to build strong relationships with the key Democratic leaders. Remember that the primary election is the best time to build relationships with the Democratic leadership. Consider the political and social issues that are likely to be the top priority issues.

STEP 1.3: LINEAR TRANSFORMATION Before computing the principal components, we need to transform the data into the principal components space. This is done by computing the principal components of the data matrix. The principal components are the eigenvectors of the covariance matrix of the data. The principal components are orthogonal to each other and have a length of 1. The principal components are the directions of maximum variance in the data.
