There is a growing body of research that suggests that the use of technology in the classroom can improve student learning. This research is based on a variety of studies that have shown that students who use technology in the classroom are more likely to be engaged in their learning, to learn more effectively, and to retain information for a longer period of time. This research also suggests that the use of technology in the classroom can help to reduce the achievement gap between students from different backgrounds. and the fact that the authors' research was not directly representative of the general population of the United States. The use of a convenience sample, in which the authors were unable to control for potential confounding variables, is a limitation of the study. The authors also note that the use of a convenience sample may have led to an overestimation of the prevalence of the condition.
