

A detailed Renaissance painting depicting a woman, likely a peasant or a personification of a virtue, seated amidst a vast and meticulously rendered array of food. She wears a wide-brimmed straw hat and a dark dress with a red sleeve. Her hands are positioned as if she is presenting or gesturing towards the food. The food is incredibly diverse and abundant, including various fruits like apples, pears, and grapes; vegetables like cabbages, carrots, and cucumbers; breads, and other delicacies. In the background, a man is visible, and the setting appears to be a rustic interior or a market stall. The overall style is characteristic of the Northern Renaissance, with fine detail and a focus on naturalistic representation of food.

The Taste of Art Silvia Bottinelli, Margherita d'Ayala Valva, 2017-06-01 The Taste of Art offers a sample of scholarly essays that examine the role of food in Western contemporary art practices The contributors are scholars from a range of disciplines including art history philosophy film studies and history As a whole the volume illustrates how artists engage with food as matter and process in order to explore alternative aesthetic strategies and indicate countercultural shifts in society The collection opens by exploring the theoretical intersections of art and food food art's historical root in Futurism and the ways in which food carries gendered meaning in popular film Subsequent sections analyze the ways in which artists challenge mainstream ideas through food in a variety of scenarios Beginning from a focus on the body and subjectivity the authors zoom out to look at the domestic sphere and finally the public sphere Here are essays that study a range of artists including among others Filippo Tommaso Marinetti Daniel Spoerri Dieter Roth Joseph Beuys Al Ruppertsberg Alison Knowles Martha Rosler Robin Weltsch Vicki Hodgetts Paul McCarthy Luciano Fabro Carries Mae Weems Peter Fischli and David Weiss Janine Antoni El bieta Jab o ska Liza Lou Tom Marioni Rirkrit Tiravanija Michael Rakowitz and Natalie Jeremijenko

A Taste of Power Katharina Vester,2015-10-02 A Taste of Power is an investigation of the crucial role culinary texts and practices played in the making of cultural identities and social hierarchies since the founding of the United States Nutritional advice and representations of food and eating including cookbooks literature magazines newspapers still life paintings television shows films and the internet have helped throughout American history to circulate normative claims about citizenship gender performance sexuality class privilege race and ethnicity while promising an increase in cultural capital and social mobility to those who comply with the prescribed norms The study examines culinary writing and practices as forces for the production of social order and at the same time as points of cultural resistance against hegemonic norms especially in shaping dominant ideas of nationalism gender and sexuality suggesting that eating right is a gateway to becoming an American a good citizen an ideal man or a perfect mother Cookbooks as a low prestige literary form became the largely unheralded vehicles for women to participate in nation building before they had access to the vote or public office for middle class authors to assert their class privileges for men to claim superiority over women even in the kitchen and for Lesbian authors to reinscribe themselves into the heteronormative economy of culinary culture The book engages in close reading of a wide variety of sources and genres to uncover the intersections of food politics and privilege in American culture Provided by publisher

The Pierogi Problem Fabio Parasecoli,Agata Bachórz,Mateusz Halawa,2025-08-05 The culinary landscape of Poland is significantly changing reshaped by a new generation of food producers chefs and media personalities The Pierogi Problem examines people s networks places material culture and media to explain how Polish tastemakers embrace context specific strategies to localize discourses practices and values amid an increasingly globalized food culture The decades following the end of Poland s socialist regime were marked by a rising interest in foreign cuisines and Western forms of consumption Today however ingredients cooking techniques and dishes that were once considered ordinary or part of the country s uncomfortable past are being refashioned to reflect transformations in cultural hierarchies The Pierogi Problem chronicles how and why local traditional and artisanal foods are reemerging for changing cosmopolitan appetites

The Labor of Lunch Jennifer E. Gaddis,2019-11-12 There s a problem with school lunch in America Big Food companies have largely replaced the nation s school cooks by supplying cafeterias with cheap precooked hamburger patties and chicken nuggets chock full of industrial fillers Yet it s no secret that meals cooked from scratch with nutritious locally sourced ingredients are better for children workers and the environment So why not empower lunch ladies to do more than just unbox and reheat factory made food And why not organize together to make healthy ethically sourced free school lunches a reality for all children The Labor of Lunch aims to spark a progressive movement that will transform food in American schools and with it the lives of thousands of low paid cafeteria workers and the millions of children they feed By providing a feminist history of the US National School Lunch Program Jennifer E Gaddis recasts the humble school lunch as an important and often overlooked form of public care Through vivid narration and moral heft The Labor of Lunch offers a stirring call to action and a blueprint for school lunch reforms capable of delivering a healthier more equitable caring and sustainable future

Curried Cultures Krishnendu Ray, Tulasi Srinivas, 2012-05 Although South Asian cookery and gastronomy has transformed contemporary urban foodscape all over the world social scientists have paid scant attention to this phenomenon Curried Cultures a wide ranging collection of essays explores the relationship between globalization and South Asia through food covering the cuisine of the colonial period to the contemporary era investigating its material and symbolic meanings Curried Cultures challenges disciplinary boundaries in considering South Asian gastronomy by assuming a proximity to dishes and diets that is often missing when food is a lens to investigate other topics The book s established scholarly contributors examine food to comment on a range of cultural activities as they argue that the practice of cooking and eating matter as an important way of knowing the world and acting on it

Slow Cooked Marion Nestle, 2022-10-04 Slow Cooked tells the story of how Marion Nestle achieved a late in life career as a leading public advocate for healthier and more sustainable diets Coming of age in post World War II America she had to overcome the barriers familial societal and institutional experienced by all women in that era Here she explains how she came to recognize the enormous influence of the food industry on our food choices and wrote Food Politics and her other books about the politics of food nutrition and health This is one woman s story with great relevance for anyone who eats

Bitter and Sweet Ellen Oxfeld, 2017-05-23 Less than a half century ago China experienced a cataclysmic famine which was particularly devastating in the countryside As a result older people in rural areas have experienced in their lifetimes both extreme deprivation and relative abundance of food Young people on the other hand have a different relationship to food Many young rural Chinese are migrating to rapidly industrializing cities for work leaving behind backbreaking labor but also a connection to food through agriculture Bitter and Sweet examines the role of food in one rural Chinese community as it has shaped everyday lives over the course of several tumultuous decades In her superb ethnographic accounts Ellen Oxfeld compels us to reexamine some of the dominant frameworks that have permeated recent scholarship on contemporary China and that describe increasing dislocation and individualism and a lack of moral centeredness By using food as a lens she shows a more complex picture where connectedness and sense of place continue to play an important role even in the context of rapid change

Feeding the Crisis Maggie Dickinson, 2019-11-19 The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program SNAP formerly known as food stamps is one of the most controversial forms of social welfare in the United States Although it s commonly believed that such federal programs have been cut back since the 1980s Maggie Dickinson charts the dramatic expansion and reformulation of the food safety net in the twenty first century

Today receiving SNAP benefits is often tied to work requirements which essentially subsidizes low wage jobs Excluded populations such as the unemployed informally employed workers and undocumented immigrants must rely on charity to survive Feeding the Crisis tells the story of eight families as they navigate the terrain of an expanding network of assistance programs in which care and abandonment work hand in hand to make access to food uncertain for people on the social and economic margins Amid calls at the federal level to expand work requirements for food assistance Dickinson shows us how such ideas are bad policy that fail to adequately address hunger in America Feeding the Crisis brings the voices of food insecure families into national debates about welfare policy offering fresh insights into how we can establish a right to food in the United States

Meat Planet Benjamin Aldes Wurgaft,2019-09-03 In 2013 a Dutch scientist unveiled the world's first laboratory created hamburger Since then the idea of producing meat not from live animals but from carefully cultured tissues has spread like wildfire through the media Meanwhile cultured meat researchers race against population growth and climate change in an effort to make sustainable protein Meat Planet explores the quest to generate meat in the lab a substance sometimes called cultured meat and asks what it means to imagine that this is the future of food Neither an advocate nor a critic of cultured meat Benjamin Aldes Wurgaft spent five years researching the phenomenon In Meat Planet he reveals how debates about lab grown meat reach beyond debates about food examining the links between appetite growth and capitalism Could satiating the growing appetite for meat actually lead to our undoing Are we simply using one technology to undo the damage caused by another Like all problems in our food system the meat problem is not merely a problem of production It is intrinsically social and political and it demands that we examine questions of justice and desirable modes of living in a shared and finite world Benjamin Wurgaft tells a story that could utterly transform the way we think of animals the way we relate to farmland the way we use water and the way we think about population and our fragile ecosystem's capacity to sustain life He argues that even if cultured meat does not succeed it functions much like science fiction as a crucial mirror that we can hold up to our contemporary fleshy dysfunctions

Hoptopia Peter A. Kopp,2016-08-09 The contents of your pint glass have a much richer history than you could have imagined Through the story of the hop Hoptopia connects twenty first century beer drinkers to lands and histories that have been forgotten in an era of industrial food production The craft beer revolution of the late twentieth century is a remarkable global history that converged in the agricultural landscapes of Oregon's Willamette Valley The common hop a plant native to Eurasia arrived to the Pacific Northwest only in the nineteenth century but has thrived within the region's environmental conditions so much that by the first half of the twentieth century the Willamette Valley claimed the title Hop Center of the World Hoptopia integrates an interdisciplinary history of environment culture economy labor and science through the story of the most indispensable ingredient in beer

A Geography of Digestion Nicholas Bauch,2017 A Geography of Digestion explores the legacy of the Kellogg Company one of America's most enduring and storied food enterprises In the late nineteenth century company founder John H Kellogg was experimenting with state of the art advances in nutritional and medical science at his Battle Creek Sanitarium At the same time he was involved in overhauling the form and function of the broader landscapes in which his health practice was situated Innovations in food manufacturing machinery urban sewer infrastructure and agricultural technology came together to forge an extensible geography of his patients bodies changing the way Americans consumed and digested food In this novel approach to the study of the Kellogg enterprise Nicholas Bauch asks his readers to think geographically about the process of digesting food Beginning with the stomach Bauch moves outward from the sanitarium through the landscapes and technologies that materialized Kellogg s particular version of digestion Far from a set of organs confined to the epidermal bounds of the body the digestive system existed in other places Moving from food processing machines to urban sewerage to agricultural fields A Geography of Digestion paints a grounded portrait of one of the most basic human processes of survival the incorporation of food into our bodies leading us to question where exactly our bodies are located Provided by publisher

Let's Ask Marion Marion Nestle, Kerry Trueman, 2020-09-29 There is no one better to ask than Marion who is the leading guide in intelligent unbiased independent advice on eating and has been for decades Mark Bittman author of How to Cook Everything Let s Ask Marion is a savvy and insightful question and answer collection that showcases the expertise of food politics powerhouse Marion Nestle in exchanges with environmental advocate Kerry Trueman These informative essays show us how to advocate for food systems that are healthier for people and the planet moving from the politics of personal dietary choices to community food issues and finally to matters that affect global food systems Nestle has been thinking writing and teaching about food systems for decades and her impact is unparalleled Let s Ask Marion provides an accessible survey of her opinions and conclusions for anyone curious about the individual social and global politics of food

Divided Spirits Sarah Bowen, 2015-10-01 Divided Spirits tells the stories of tequila and mezcal two of Mexico s most iconic products In doing so the book illustrates how neoliberalism influences the production branding and regulation of local foods and drinks It also challenges the strategy of relying on alternative markets to protect food cultures and rural livelihoods In recent years as consumers increasingly demand to connect with the people and places that produce their food the concept of terroir the taste of place has become more and more prominent Tequila and mezcal are both protected by denominations of origin DOs legal designations that aim to guarantee a product s authenticity based on its link to terroir Advocates argue that the DOs expand market opportunities protect cultural heritage and ensure the reputation of Mexico s national spirits Yet this book shows how the institutions that are supposed to guard the legacy of all Mexicans often fail those who are most in need of protection the small producers agave farmers and other workers who have been making tequila and mezcal for generations The consequences for the quality and taste of tequila and mezcal and for communities throughout Mexico are stark Divided Spirits suggests that we must move beyond market based models if we want to safeguard local products and the people who make them Instead we need systems of production consumption and oversight that are more democratic more inclusive and more participatory Lasting change is unlikely without the involvement of the state and a sustained commitment to addressing inequality and supporting rural development

Making Modern Meals Amy B. Trubek, 2017-10-24 Home cooking is crucial to our lives but it is not necessary to our survival Over the past century it has become an everyday choice even though it is no longer an everyday chore By looking closely at the stories and practices of American home cooks witnessing them in the kitchen and at the table Amy B Trubek reveals our episodic but also engaged relationship to making meals Making Modern Meals explores the state of American cooking across all its varied practices whether cooking is considered a chore a craft or a creative process Trubek challenges current assumptions about who cooks who doesn't cook and what this means for culture cuisine and health Contending that cooking has changed in the past century she locates identifies and discusses the myriad ways Americans cook in the modern age In doing so she argues that changes in making our meals from shopping to cooking to dining have created new cooks new cooking categories and new culinary challenges

Reinventing the Wheel Bronwen Percival, Francis Percival, 2017-09-05 Reinventing the Wheel is equal parts popular science history and muckraking Over the past hundred and fifty years dairy farming and cheesemaking have been transformed and this book explores what has been lost along the way Today using cutting edge technologies like high throughput DNA sequencing scientists are beginning to understand the techniques of our great grandparents The authors describe how geneticists are helping conservationists rescue rare dairy cow breeds on the brink of extinction microbiologists are teaching cheesemakers to nurture the naturally occurring microbes in their raw milk rather than destroying them and communities of cheesemakers are producing real cheeses that reunite farming and flavor rewarding diversity and sustainability at every level Provided by publisher

The Quinoa Bust Emma McDonell, 2025-02-18 Quinoa rose to global stardom pitched as an unparalleled sustainable development opportunity that heralded a bright future for rural communities devastated by decades of rural urban migration civil war and state neglect The Quinoa Bust is based in a longitudinal ethnography centered around Puno Peru the main quinoa production area in the world's chief quinoa exporting country This book traces the social ecological technological and political work that went into transforming a humble Andean grain into a development miracle crop and also highlights that project's unintended consequences The Quinoa Bust shows how even efforts based in the best of intentions counteracting the homogenization of global food supply empowering small scale farmers revaluing local food cultures and adapting agricultural systems to climate change can generate new kinds of oppression At a time when so called forgotten foods are increasingly positioned as sustainable development tools The Quinoa Bust offers a cautionary tale of fleeting benefits and ambivalent results

Nile Nightshade Anny Gaul, 2025-10-28 A cultural and culinary history of modern Egypt through the nation's beloved tomato By the end of the twentieth century the tomato indigenous to the Americas had become Egypt's top horticultural crop and a staple of Egyptian cuisine The tomato brought together domestic consumers cookbook readers and home cooks through a shared culinary culture that sometimes transcended differences of class region gender and ethnicity and sometimes reinforced them In Nile Nightshade Anny Gaul shows how Egyptians embrace of the tomato and the emergence of Egypt's modern national identity were both driven by the modernization of the country's food system Drawing from cookbooks archival materials oral histories and vernacular culture Gaul follows this commonplace food into the realms of domestic policy and labor through the hands of Egypt's overwhelmingly female home cooks As they wrote recipes and cooked meals these women forged key aspects of public culture that defined how Egyptians recognized themselves and one another as Egyptian      Gastropolitics and the Specter of Race María Elena García, 2021-03-15 In recent years Peru has transformed from a war torn country to a global high end culinary destination Connecting chefs state agencies global capital and Indigenous producers this gastronomic revolution makes powerful claims food unites Peruvians dissolves racial antagonisms and fuels development Gastropolitics and the Specter of Race critically evaluates these claims and tracks the emergence of Peruvian gastropolitics a biopolitical and aesthetic set of practices that reinscribe dominant racial and gendered orders Through critical readings of high end menus and ethnographic analysis of culinary festivals guinea pig production and national branding campaigns this work explores the intersections of race species and capital to reveal links between gastronomy and violence in Peru
